Capt. Quay Quoted Regarding His Father's Prospects.

THE CASE COMING UP SATURDAY.

Supreme Court May Give Decision or Hear Argument or Appoint a Day For Argument-Attorney Graham Asked to Continue In the Case.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—United States Senator Quay returned to this city from Harrisburg to confer with his counsel in reference to criminal charges brought against him in connection with the wrecked People's bank, and went to Washington, after receiving many calls from personal friends. When the case comes up the commonwealth will still be represented by ex-District Attorney Graham, his recently elected successor, P. F. Rothermel, having asked him to continue in the case. Saturday next has been fixed for the return of the rule issued to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not issue to the court of quarter sessions in the cases. It is not definitely certain that the supreme court will hear argument on that day on the rule. It may be possible, however, that it may fix a day for argument at that time.

It is not unusual in important cases for the court, on the return day of the proceeding, a ascertain from counsel how long argument will take, and then set aside a time for the taking up of the case. Frequently the court declines to hear argument and will give a decision upon the proceedings as they appear upon the record.

What turn the Quay case will take on Saturday next can only be conjectured, but it is thought the court will not hear an extended argument at that

Regarding the intention of Mr. Graham, as special assistant, in presenting the case, it was understood that if the supreme court sent them back to the quarter sessions court of this county Mr. Graham would surely have charge of them for the district attorney.

Neither Mr. Graham nor District Attorney Rothermel would make any positive statement in regard to their course in the future conduct of the Senator Quay was accompanied by his two sons, R. R. Quay and Captain Kirk Quay. The senator went at once to the Stratford hotel. He conferred for several hours with his attorneys.

He declined absolutely to discuss politics.

On the train that brought Senator Quay to the city came a number of those who have been active participants in the caucus fight at Harrisburg. Senator Penrose, ex-State Senator Durham, Real Estate Assessor J. W. Durham, Senator Andrews, Collector McClain, Magistrate South, Rudolph Blankenburg and others were among the number. Ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker returned to this city.

At the Stratford there was a long stream of callers. Most of them were friendly to the senator and from them it was gathered that when the day for the will be a surprise sprung on the opposition. They assert that the caucus was a part of the general program and that no importance can a attached to the fact that only 100 Republicans attended the session. The surprise, they say, arrangements have already been made by which the senator will be given all the votes needed to secure his election. In this connection one of the satellites

ANTI-QUAY ADDRESS.

A Committee Representing the Organization Issued One-Flinn Chairman of the Meeting.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.—The Republican senators and members who signed the pledge not to take part in the senatorial caucus organized to keep up the fight against Senator Quay until after the supreme court has disposed of the People's bank conspiracy cases. The meeting was attended by nearly all the signers and two others who did not sign, but kept away from the caucus.

General William H. Koontz of Somerset called the meeting to order and nominated Senator William Flinn of Allegheny for chairman, and Senator J. Bayard Henry of Philadelphia and Representative Robert K. Young of Tioga for secretaries. Senator Flinn said there had been no necessity for holding a senatorial caucus, and that so long as those who stayed away stood together there could be no election of a United States senator. He further said in part that what he wanted was more light on the charges pending against Senator Quay to ascertain whether he is a proper person to be elected to the United States senate.

Senator-elect David Martin of Philadelphia, who will be qualified Jan. 17, when the house and senate will vote for senator, concurred in what Senator Flinn said.

Senators Flinn and Weller of Bedford and Representatives Coray of Lazerne.

Savage of Philadelphia, Moore of But ler and Young were appointed a com-mittee to take charge of the work of the organization.

The committee later issued the following address:

To the Republicans of Pennsylvania: We, the undersigned committee appointed by, and representing the absentees of the alleged Republican caucus, desiring that our fellow Republicans throughout the state should understand clearly the motives which animate us in our present position with reference to the United States senatorship hereby briefly set forth our reasons:

In our present attitude we are prompted by what we believe to be the best interest of our party and state. We believe that a Republican senator should and will be elected and that no combination of circumstances can prevent it. We believe that the unquestioned sentiment of the Republicans of the commonwealth is against taking action that might result in the election of a person as United States senator who is charged with crime before his innocence is established in a court of justice, and that the failure to demand that question prior to this time is due to the act of the alleged caucus nominee in delaying trial and not to any act of ours We feel that in justice to the public and our own sense of self respect and luty we are justified in refusing to be committed to any proposition that might cast a tigma upon our commonwealth and our own ntegrity as citizens and legislators.

Feeling that we are sustained in our position by the unbiased sentiment of the state, we leem it unwise to vote for any person for Inited States senator who is duly charged vith crime so long as those charges remain indetermined. We cannot justify ourselves or voting for any person for office who is inlieted for criminal offenses and who simply dleges that he is the victim of a political conpiracy. We believe that the public as well is ourselves is not interested in the motives of he person making the charges, but rather in he truth or the falsity of these charges.

Entertaining these views we submit our ection to the unprejudiced judgment of our fellow citizens.

The senatorial members of the peace commission appeared on the floor and were given a hearty greeting by their colleagues.

The chaplain in his invocation said: "We come together under a sense of bereavement by the absence of the senior senator of Vermont, whose wise counsel and loving presence shall no more enrich the proceedings in this chamber. We bless thee, O' Lord! for his noble life, for his example to all men, and we pray that his spirit may ever abide within these walls.

In the absence of the vice president, Mr. Frye (Me.), the president pro tem., called the senate to order.

Later a message from the president of the United States was presented. It contained the treaty of Paris.

On motion of Mr. Davis, the senate then went into executive session, in order that the treaty might be referred to the committee on foreign relations.

GIFTS TO CHICAGO UNIVERSITY.

Land Presented and John Rockefeller Will Give Cash.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—President Harper of Chicago university announced at the twenty-seventh convocation of the university that gifts aggregating $403,-000 had been made to the institution. Martin A. Ryerson, president of the board of trustees, donated a tract of land. The value of this is $34,000. John D. Rockefeller had promised to duplicate the gift in cath.

Marshall Field of this city gave a tract of land. The value of this land is estimated at $135,000. Mr. Rockefeller agreed that when this was given he would give $200,000 for the building of a gymnasium and the equipment of the athletic grounds. The university, therefore, received $169,000 in land value and will now receive from Mr. Rockefeller $234,000 in cash.

"Its leading feature is M. Salomon's conclusion that banishment is useless and undesirable as a punishment because it produces the complete moral degradation of the exile.

"Salomon found the prisons in Western Siberia in fair condition with no signs of overcrowding or dirt, but in Eastern Siberia the conditions were quite the opposite. Matters he found still worse in Saghalien—prisoners badly treated, prisons filthy and hospitals crowded like pig sties. He dismissed two chief directors of prisons for cruelty and embezzlement and 80 minor officials for cruelty.

"He has drafted a comprehensive system of reforms in prison treatment, greatly ameliorating existing conditions, providing payment for penal work and facilities for settling in Siberia on the expiration of sentences. He believed his suggested reforms would be speedily inaugurated."

SCRAPED OFF THE GREEN.

Then the Beef Was Good, Said a Major. The Hoof Killed Beef Was Not Healthy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 .- Major Harrison, Ninth volunteer infantry, whose regiment was raised near New Orleans and is now in service at Santiago, was one of the witnesses before the war investigating commission.

Concerning commissary stores, he said those in the United States were the best that could be bought in the open market. The refrigerated beef sent from this country, he said, was excellent. He had had much experience with refrigerated meat, and he said that while there was some disposition on the part of the regimental cooks to cavil at the appearance of the meat, it was in reality quite good. He explained that the sudden change of temperature on removing the meat from the refrigerator ships produced what is known as a "beard," a greenish growth that had to be scraped off.

When this was done, the meat beneath was perfectly good. It was served to the men with excellent results and benefited the sick materially. The chief trouble came when the change was made to hoof cattle sent from Porto Rico. This beef Major Harrison killed himself and personally superintended its dressing and cooling. He further said in part: "But it would not cool in that climate. The meat never lost its animal heat and with its use our sickness increased 10 per cent."

Of the canned meat, Major Harrison spoke with equal emphasis, saying that it was fully as good as the refrigerator beef, was well received by the men and none of it had to be condemned.

Governor Beaver asked if a refrigerating plant were estalished there whether Cuban beef could be killed on the ground and rendered fit for use by the men. Witness said he thought this would not be desirable, as the Cuban cattle, while fine looking, furnished the coarsest and most stringy beef he had ver seen.

Witness said he was thoroughly familiar with the processes of refrigerating and butenering meat and he was willing to state positively that there were no chemicals used in any of the American beef that passed under his observation.

Recurring to the hoof killed beef at Santiago, witness said the surgeons in charge attributed the 10 per cent increase in intestinal sickness to the use of the fresh killed beef. There was a proportionate decrease in sickness when the regiment returned to the refrigerated beef.

COST UNDER THE HULL BILL.

Letters Showing the Expense of Proposed Military Establishment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The cost of the proposed military establishment under the Hull bill, reported to the house, as compared with the present regular military establishment, not counting the volunteer force incident to the war, was shown in letters sent by Adjutant General Corbin to Chairman Hull of the military committee.

It gives the present cost of the regular army at $24,343,434; cost under the proposed bill, $82,053,865; increase of cost, $57,710,231.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR DELAY.

The Motion to Oust Expected to Come Up Today In the State Supreme Court. Attorney Kline Went to Columbus For the Standard Oil Company.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 5.—The taking of testimony in the Standard Oil case was not resumed before Master Commissioner Brinsmade, due to the fact that the state attorney general had filed a motion before the Ohio supreme court to oust Brinsmade from his position as master commissioner. This motion was set for hearing before the supreme court today. Mr. Brinsmade received the following telegram from Attorney General Monnett: "Can't resume the case Thursday. Havn't any money to pay expenses.

Not only will Commissioner Brinsmade file an answer to Monnett's ouster action, but the Standard Oil company will do so as well, so Mr. Brinsmade said. Attorney Virgil P. Kline, representing the Standard Oil company, went to Columbus to personally file the company's answer with the supreme court.

The commissioner completed his answer to the attorney general's motion to oust him. In brief it set forth the following:

"First-It is not true the attorney general was refused the books of the liquidating trustees in New York. On the contrary the books were produced for the inspection of Mr. Kincaid, the attorney general's associate counsel, and myself; copies were taken therefrom and are attached to the testimony now on file with the clerk of the supreme court.

"Second-As to having no further means of continuing the case I refer the court to session laws, Vol. 89, page 407, in regard to the powers of the emergency board, which has full power to appropriate any deficiency in any department.

"Third-The commissioner was appointed June 24, 1898. The attorney general notified the commissioner he would not be ready until September to take up the case. By an agreement between Monnett and Kline, with which I had nothing to do, the case was finally set for Oct. 10.

"Fourth-The second order of the court, requiring Squire to produce the books, was made Dec. 6, and the commissioner was requested to proceed with all convenient speed to examine the books under the direction of the attorney general. The attorney general made no request until Dec. 20 to have the case set for Dec. 22. The master commissioner leaves it for the court to decide as to who has been responsible for the delay in the taking of testimony.

"Fifth—The attorney general in one of his reasons says: It will appear manifest to the court from the record that the referee has yielded to the applications for continuances and delays over which the state has no control. The commissioner replies the record shows no such thing, and on the contrary the facts show the attorney general himself is responsible for the de-

"Sixth-The commissioner makes this statement purely for the purpose of placing himself right before the honorable court, who saw fit to appoint him master commissioner."

When this was done, the meat be-neath was perfectly good. It was served to the men with excellent results and benefited the sick materially. The chief trouble came when the change was made to hoof cattle sent from Porto Rico. This beef Major Harrison killed himself and personally superintended its dressing and cooling. He further said in part: "But it would not cool in that climate. The meat never lost its animal heat and with its use our sickness increased 10 per cent."

Of the canned meat, Major Harrison spoke with equal emphasis, saying that it was fully as good as the refrigerator beef, was well received by the men and none of it had to be condemned.

Governor Beaver asked if a refrigerating plant were estalished there whether Cuban beef could be killed on the ground and rendered fit for use by the men. Witness said he thought this would not be desirable, as the Cuban cattle, while fine looking, furnished the coarsest and most stringy beef he had

Witness said he was thoroughly familiar with the processes of refrigerating and butchering meat and he was willing to state positively that there were no chemicals used in any of the American beef that passed under his observation.

Recurring to the hoof killed beef at Santiago, witness said the surgeons in charge attributed the 10 per cent increase in intestinal sickness to the use of the fresh killed beef. There was a proportionate decrease in sickness when the regiment returned to the refrigerated beef.

COST UNDER THE HULL BILL.

Letters Showing the Expense of Proposed Military Establishment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The cost of the proposed military establishment under the Hull bill, reported to the house, as compared with the present regular military establishment, not counting the volunteer force incident to the war, was shown in letters sent by Adjutant General Corbin to Chairman Hull of the military committee.

It gives the present cost of the regular army at $24,343,434; cost under the proposed bill, $82,053,865; increase of cost, $57,710,231.

New York. Jan. 5.-Although the value of the late Calvin S. Denied the Charges Filed by Monnett.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR DELAY.

The Motion to Oust Expected to Come Up Today In the State Supreme Court. Attorney Kline Went to Columbus For the Standard Oil Company.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 5.—The taking of testimony in the Standard Oil case was not resumed before Master Commissioner Brinsmade, due to the fact that the state attorney general had filed a motion before the Ohio supreme court to oust Brinsmade from his position as master commissioner. This motion was set for hearing before the supreme court today. Mr. Brinsmade received the following telegram from Attorney General Monnett: "Can't resume the case Thursday. Havn't any money to pay expenses.'

Not only will Commissioner Brinsmade file an answer to Monnett's ouster action, but the Standard Oil company will do so as well, so Mr. Brinsmade said. Attorney Virgil P. Kline, representing the Standard Oil company, went to Columbus to personally file the company's answer with the supreme court.

The commissioner completed his answer to the attorney general's motion to oust him. In brief it set forth the following:

"First-It is not true the attorney general was refused the books of the liquidating trustees in New York. On the contrary the books were produced for the inspection of Mr. Kincaid, the attorney general's associate counsel, and myself; copies were taken therefrom and are attached to the testimony now on file with the clerk of the supreme court.

"Second-As to having no further means of continuing the case I refer the court to session laws, Vol. 89, page 407, in regard to the powers of the emergency board, which has full power to appropriate any deficiency in any department.

"Third-The commissioner was appointed June 24, 1898. The attorney general notified the commissioner he would not be ready until September to take up the case. By an agreement between Monnett and Kline, with which I had nothing to do, the case was finally set for Oct. 10.

"Fourth-The second order of the court, requiring Squire to produce the books, was made Dec. 6, and the commissioner was requested to proceed with all convenient speed to examine the books under the direction of the attorney general. The attorney general made no request until Dec. 20 to have the case set for Dec. 22. The master commissioner leaves it for the court to decide as to who has been responsible for the delay in the taking of testimony. "Fifth—The attorney general in one of his reasons says: It will appear manifest to the court from the record that the referee has yielded to the applications for continuances and delays over which the state has no control. Feared Pneumonia Had Developed -- Dingley Had a Sinking Spell, but Rallied Somewhat.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The illness from which ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster is suffering has taken a turn for the worse and it was feared that pneumonia had developed. The patient was very restless and had a severe coughing spell which considerably weakened him.

The physicians attending Representative Dingley announced that he was resting comfortably, but they were not able to say whether there was sufficient vitality left in the patient to successfully resist the inroads of the disease. After his sinking spell he rallied somewhat and appeared stronger.

Capt. Quay Quoted Regarding His Father's Prospects.

THE CASE COMING UP SATURDAY.

Supreme Court May Give Decision or Hear Argument or Appoint a Day For Argument-Attorney Graham Asked to Continue In the Case.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—United States Senator Quay returned to this city from Harrisburg to confer with his counsel in reference to criminal charges brought against him in connection with the wrecked People's bank, and went to Washington, after receiving many calls from personal friends. When the case comes up the commonwealth will still be represented by ex-District Attorney Graham, his recently elected successor, P. F. Rothermel, having asked him to continue in the case. Saturday next has been fixed for the return of the rule issued to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not issue to the court of quarter sessions in the cases. It is not definitely certain that the supreme court will hear argument on that day on the rule. It may be possible, however, that it may fix a day for argument at that time.

It is not unusual in important cases for the court, on the return day of the proceeding, ascertain from counsel how long argument will take, and then set aside a time for the taking up of the case. Frequently the court declines to hear argument and will give a decision upon the proceedings as they appear upon the record.

What turn the Quay case will take on Saturday next can only be conjectured, but it is thought the court will not hear an extended argament at that time.

Regarding the intention of Mr. Graham, as special assistant, in presenting the case, it was understood that if the supreme court sent them back to the quarter sessions court of this county Mr. Graham would surely have charge of them for the district attorney.

Neither Mr. Graham nor District Attorney Rothermel would make any positive statement in regard to their course in the future conduct of the Senator Quay was accompanied by his two sons, R. R. Quay and Captain bereavement by the absence of the Kirk Quay. The senator went at once to the Stratford hotel. He conferred for several hours with his attorneys.

He declined absolutely to discuss politics.

On the train that brought Senator Quay to the city came a number of those who have been active participants in the caucus fight at Harrisburg. Senator Penrose, ex-State Senator Durham. Real Estate Assessor J. W. Durham, Senator Andrews, Collector McClain, Magistrate South, Rudolph Blankenburg and others were among the number. Ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker returned to this city.

At the Stratford there was a long stream of callers. Most of them were friendly to the senator and from them it was gathered that when the day for the election of the senator arrives there will be a surprise sprung on the opposition. They assert that the caucus was a part of the general program and that no importance can a attached to the fact that only 100 Republicans attended the session. The surprise, they say, will be in the form of votes, and that crimes in Alaska and provide a code of arrangements have already been made criminal proceedure for the territory. by which the senator will be given all the votes needed to secure his election. the bill was made a continuing order In this connection one of the satellites until disposed of, not, however, to in-

ANTI-QUAY ADDRESS.

A Committee Representing the Organization Issued One-Flinn Chairman of the Meeting.

The land. The value of this is $34,000. meeting was attended by nearly all the John D. Rockefeller had promised to meeting was attended by nearly all the signers and two others who did not sign, but kept away from the caucus.

General William H. Koontz of Somerset called the meeting to order and nominated Senator William Flinn of Allegheny for chairman, and Senator J. Bayard Henry of Philadelphia and Representative Robert K. Young of Tioga for secretaries. Senator Flinn said there had been no necessity for holding a senatorial caucus, and that so long as those who stayed away stood together there could be no election of a United States senator. He further said in part that what he wanted was more light on the charges pending against Senator Quay to ascertain whether he is a proper person to be elected to the United States senate.

Senator-elect David Martin of Philadelphia, who will be qualified Jan. 17, when the house and senate will vote for senator, concurred in what Senator

The committee later issued the following address:

To the Republicans of Pennsylvania:

We, the undersigned committee appointed by, and representing the absentees of the alleged Republican caucus, desiring that our fellow Republicans throughout the state should understand clearly the motives which animate us in our present position with ref-erence to the United States senatorship hereby briefly set forth our reasons:

In our present attitude we are prompted by what we believe to be the best interest of our party and state. We believe that a Republican senator should and will be elected and that no combination of circumstances can prevent it. We believe that the unquestioned sentiment of the Republicans of the commonwealth is against taking action that might result in the election of a person as United States senator who is charged with crime before his innoence is established in a court of justice, and that the failure to demand that question prior to this time is due to the act of the alleged caucus nominee in delaying trial and not to any act of ours We feel that in justice to the public and our own sense of self respect and luty we are justified in refusing to be comnitted to any proposition that might cast a tigma upon our commonwealth and our own ntegrity as citizens and legislators.

Feeling that we are sustained in our position by the unbiased sentiment of the state, we leem it unwise to vote for any person for Inited States senator who is duly charged with crime so long as those charges remain indetermined. We cannot justify ourselves or voting for any person for office who is inficted for criminal offenses and who simply lleges that he is the victim of a political conspiracy. We believe that the public as well s ourselves is not interested in the motives of he person making the charges, but rather in he truth or the falsity of these charges.

Entertaining these views we submit our action to the unprejudiced judgment of our fellow citizens.

In the absence of the vice president, Mr. Frye (Me.), the president pro tem., called the senate to order.

Later a message from the president of the United States was presented. It contained the treaty of Paris.

On motion of Mr. Davis, the senate then went into executive session, in order that the treaty might be referred to the committee on foreign relations.

In a few minutes the senate reconvened in open session, and Mr. Allison announced the death of Senator Morrill. The usual resolutions were adopted and as a mark of respect the serfate adjourned until today.

BANISHMENT DECLARED USELESS.

M. Salomon Concluded That It Produced Moral Degradation of Exiles - Dismissed Some Officials For Cruelty and Embezzlement-Reforms to Be Inaugurated.

London, Jan. 5.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail says: "Privy Councillor Salomon of the prisons' administration has just returned here from a five months' tour of the prisons and exile colonies of the Russian government in Siberia and the island of Saghalien, off the south coast of Asia. He has furnished me with the chief points of his personal report to the czar.

"Its leading feature is M. Salomon's conclusion that banishment is useless and undesirable as a punishment because it produces the complete moral degradation of the exile.

"Salomon found the prisons in West-ern Siberia in fair condition with no signs of overcrowding or dirt, but in Eastern Siberia the conditions were quite the opposite. Matters he found still worse in Saghalien—prisoners badly treated, prisons filthy and hospitals crowded like pig sties. He dismissed two chief directors of prisons for cruelty and embezzlement and 80 minor officials for cruelty.

"He has drafted a comprehensive system of reforms in prison treatment, greatly ameliorating existing conditions, providing payment for penal work and facilities for settling in Siberia on the expiration of sentences. He believed his suggested reforms would be speedily inaugurated."

Then the Beef Was Good, Said a Major. The Hoof Killed Beef Was Not Healthy.

Washington, Jan. 5 .- Major Harrison. Ninth volunteer infantry, whose regiment was raised near New Orleans and is now in service at Santiago, was one of the witnesses before the war investigating commission.

Concerning commissary stores, he said those in the United States were the best that could be bought in the open market. The refrigerated beef sent from this country, he said, was excellent. He had had much experience with refrigerated meat, and he said that while there was some disposition on the part of the regimental cooks to cavil at the appearance of the meat, it was in reality quite good. He explained that the sudden change of temperature on removing the meat from the refrigerator ships produced what is known as a 'beard," a greenish growth that had to be scraped off.

When this was done, the meat beneath was perfectly good. It was served to the men with excellent results and benefited the sick materially. The chief trouble came when the change was made to hoof cattle sent from Porto Rico. This beef Major Harrison killed himself and personally superintended its dressing and cooling. MISSION WORK IN AFRICA

Bishop Hartzell's Great Plans For the Dark Continent.

BRITISH CO-OPERATION PROMISED.

Centers of Civilization Proposed In Rhodesia and Southeastern Africa. Possibilities In Ancient Ophir-The Great Sway of the Fetich Man.

Many colored people as well as others are interested in the trip of Bishop Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal thurch to Africa. The bishop's work includes the missions of American Methodism in Africa. On his arrival in that continent he intends to develop some wide reaching plans which he has formed and put under way since his appointment to the African field in 1896. One of his centers of operation is Rhodesia, in southeastern Africa, and there he has received concessions from the British authorities to the value of about $40,-000, with a contingent promise of assistance to the extent of dollar for dollar such money as he expends in the development of the projects looking to the civilization and Christianization of a Will be Closed Out Without large territory. The substantial concessions are in lands and buildings. But of greater significance than this material support is the sentiment favoring united efforts of British and Americans officially expressed on behalf of the Chartered company operating Rhodesia.

Bishop Hartzell has great confidence in the future of the colony which the genius of Cecil Rhodes has developed under the British flag, a track of country destined to be traversed by the railway and telegraph lines that will at no very distant day connect the Cape Colony with Cairo. He has consecrated himself to African work now, he said, and his conversation indicated that he is heartily with those who believe that the English and Americans together should undertake the work that civiof Africa. He has traveled thousands of miles there and familiarized himself with the conditions of the country and

In talking with a reporter the bishop quoted these words from an official letter which he had received from Earl Grey, representing the British South African company, "England desires America to unite in the establishment of Anglo-Saxon civilization in eastern Africa, where for thousands of years there has been nothing but barbarous heathenism." They indicated, he said, the cordiality with which he had been life and death by pointing out to a petty larly by those who wish to escape the received in his presentation of his plans king persons who in their judgment overcrowding that prevails on the other to inaugurate a large missionary movement in Rhodesia, in south central

He has episcopal supervision of Liberia, Angola, a Portuguese colony on the west coast, and Rhodesia. There are many missionaries as well as schools, Sunday schools, churches and orphanages in these territories, but the bishop is giving large attention to plans for this new and great movement in Rhodesia. There civilization is blotting out the wilderness as rapidly as was the case in the great west of this country a few years ago. The same splendid push and energy characterize the advance there as here in the United States. Men of the same class are carrying on the work there. He spoke of banqueting in one place farther north than the region under consideration 18 months after the English had fought for their lives there against the barbarians. His plans include great missionary centers at Old and New Umtali, from 225 to 250 miles inland from Beira, on the coast. The bishop traveled on horseback a good part of that distance before the railroad was completed. New Umtali is destined to be an English town of large importance. The white population has grown there in one store $200,000 worth of merchandise, all of which was carried there on the heads of natives, from 20 to 50 miles, as the railroad was apregion on a mountainous plateau 4,000 feet above the sea. The government has granted him a concession of land worth at least $10,000 in New Umtali, where will be developed at once an institution favors religious education, but stipulates that in institutions receiving governmental aid sectarian instruction

"New Umtali will be the railroad center for 450 miles of road from the coast to Salisbury, half of which is already built," Bishop Hartzell said, "and will be connected with Tete on the Zambezi, 200 miles north, by telegraph and railway. It will be one of the important towns in that part of Africa. South of it are the ruined cities of Zimbabwe. These are objects of great interest to explorers and antiquarians. In that region the Right Hon. Cecil Rhodes has a great experimental farm, where he is spending large sums upon live stock and agricultural products, his purpose being to demonstrate what lines of agricultural development are possible in that climate and territory. "My plan for the organization of this central missionary station includes several departments. In the first place, I purpose to organize industrial schools in agriculture, carpentry, brickmaking and such other industries as may be made profitable and to teach the natives how to gain a livelihood and develop independent and successful communities. It is proposed to use hospital and medical work as an evangelizing agency, on the plans which are most approved in our best foreign missionary work in other countries.

"One of the great forces to be broken among the native heathen in Africa is the power of the fetich doctor. I have seen many specimens of these fiends in human shape. They represent the inherited shrewdness and cunning of centuries. They stand as the accredited controllers of evil spirits, which are supposed by the natives to inhabit the air and to be the sources of innumerable ills, either directly or through human but as the Fifth avenue route is comagency. These fiends have the power of paratively short and is patronized regu have been the cause of some evil, either lines the company thinks the automoto the tribe or its prosperity, or to some individual. They have some native remedies which frequently work good results, and occasionally they can do some surgery, but in the mass they are a blight and a curse upon the native multitudes. Their power is immense, and they play upon the superstition of the natives with tremendous effect. The remedy for this is the quiet, patient, consecrated Christian physician, who in the spirit and with the methods of Christ shall go about and show to the people a better way of life. "There will be schools for boys and girls and orphanages for little children, who will be trained under Christian matrons separate from barbarous, heathen associations. The church, with its services in the native language, will of course be an important and central factor. THE NEWS REVIEW COMPANY

Giving the Lucky First-Comers an Opportunity of Saving Dollars in Fine Office Stationary-We Need Shelf Room for a Splendid New Line Just Received.

Closing out sales are now occupying the attention of many of our business men. They need shelf room for spring stocks. It is a time when profits are not considered; anything to move the goods.

A printer's stock is generally staple. but odds and ends will accumulate, and their room is more to be desired than the goods. We have an assortment of some fifteen or twenty thousand sheets in ruled papers, comprising odd sizes and broken lines; papers that have been special ruled for firms who have either quit business or discontinued their use. They may answer your purpose, and are, perhaps, the very thing you have been looking for. We want shelf room, and will close out all odds and ends at cost and less. The saving to you will be great, and never again will such an opportunity present itself. These goods must be seen to be appreciated. Telephone 122 will bring our solicitor to you.

By giving one firm the bulk of our trade, which amounts to more than that of all the printers in East Liverpool, we have been enabled to secure a complete line of ruled writing paper, in flats, bonds and linens, at even less price than others can buy the common grades. This stock is the product of a worldfamed Massachusetts manufacturer, and we can now give you an A1 article for the same price you will have to pay elsewhere for the cheap grades.

No need to say anything about our mechanical department. You know we are strictly up-to-date, and this tells a long story in a few words.

Don't give out your printing, no matter what the nature, until you consult the NEWS REVIEW.

MISSION WORK IN AFRICA

Bishop Hartzell's Great Plans For the Dark Continent.

BRITISH CO-OPERATION PROMISED.

Centers of Civilization Proposed In Rhodesia and Southeastern Africa. Possibilities In Ancient Ophir-The Great Sway of the Fetich Man.

Many colored people as well as others are interested in the trip of Bishop Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal shurch to Africa. The bishop's work includes the missions of American Methodism in Africa. On his arrival in that continent he intends to develop some wide reaching plans which he has formed and put under way since his appointment to the African field in 1896. One of his centers of operation is Rhodesia, in southeastern Africa, and there he has received concessions from the British authorities to the value of about $40,-000, with a contingent promise of assistance to the extent of dollar for dollar such money as he expends in the development of the projects looking to the civilization and Christianization of a large territory. The substantial concessions are in lands and buildings. But of greater significance than this material support is the sentiment favoring united efforts of British and Americans officially expressed on behalf of the Chartered company operating Rhodesia.

Bishop Hartzell has great confidence in the future of the colony which the genius of Cecil Rhodes has developed under the British flag, a track of country destined to be traversed by the railway and telegraph lines that will at no very distant day connect the Cape Colony with Cairo. He has consecrated himself to African work now, he said, and his conversation indicated that he is heartily with those who believe that the English and Americans together should undertake the work that civilization requires to be done in this part of Africa. He has traveled thousands of miles there and familiarized himself with the conditions of the country and

In talking with a reporter the bishop quoted these words from an official letter which he had received from Earl Grey, representing the British South African company, "England desires America to unite in the establishment of Anglo-Saxon civilization in eastern Africa, where for thousands of years there has been nothing but barbarous heathenism." They indicated, he said, the cordiality with which he had been received in his presentation of his plans king persons who in their judgment overcrowding that prevails on the other to inaugurate a large missionary move- have been the cause of some evil, either lines the company thinks the automoment in Rhodesia, in south central

There are some surgery, but in the mass they are many missionaries as well as schools, a blight and a curse upon the native likely that electricity would be used Sunday schools, churches and orphanages in these territories, but the bishop is giving large attention to plans for this new and great movement in Rhodesia. There civilization is blotting out the wilderness as rapidly as was the case in the great west of this country a few years ago. The same splendid push and energy characterize the advance there as here in the United States. Men of the same class are carrying on the work there. The ruins of the old mines are still there. There are quite a number of paying gold mines within a few miles of New Umtali. The agricultural possibilities of the region are also great. Here among the Eu ropeans, as the population increases and the plans are developed, will be established an institution of learning where in addition to the ordinary work of education we can have a missionary training school for the education of white teachers and missionaries, both male and female, who are willing to consecrate their lives to the redemption of Light Ones Will Soon Supplant Fifth Africa.

"At Old Umtali, across the pass, in a beautiful valley through which flow in use in London and Paris will soon two mountain streams, my plan is to develop on a large scale a missionary station for the natives. The natives here are mostly Mashonas. The principal chief lives nearby. These natives are intelligent, and easily take to agricultural and other industrial pursuits. They also take readily to mechanics. At this point the government has granted me without expense plots of land and buildings in the town worth at least $30,000. It has also made a concession of land nearby where we can have gardens and an experimental farming station and has offered a large concession of land farther north in the Inyanga country, where the plateau varies from 4,000 to 6,000 feet above the sea. In that region the Right Hon. Cecil Rhodes has a great experimental farm, where he is spending large sums upon live stock and agricultural products, his purpose being to demonstrate what lines of agricultural development are possible in that climate and territory.

"My plan for the organization of this central missionary station includes several departments. In the first place, I purpose to organize industrial schools in agriculture, carpentry, brickmaking and such other industries as my be made profitable and to teach the natives how to gain a livelihood and develop independent and successful communities. It is proposed to use hospital and medical work as an evangelizing agency, on the plans which are most approved in our best foreign missionary work in other countries.

AUTOMOBILE VEHICLES.

Avenue Stages In New York.

Automobile vehicles similar to those supplant the dingy, comfortless omnibuses that now roll up and down Fifth avenue in New York. Officers of the Third Avenue Railway company recently purchased the entire capital stock of the Fifth Avenue Stage company, and the purchase indicates a change in the system of transit.

At the offices of the Third Avenue Railway company I was told the other day that the officials had not yet decided upon the motive power of the automobiles, but that the routes to be covered would extend far beyond the one in Fifth avenue probably. While the storage battery system meets with favor, yet compressed air or petroleum may be used. The company may soon send a representative to Paris to inspect the automobiles there and decide upon which style of vehicle to use. Several months may pass before the change is made.

On account of the peculiar conditions to which any plan for street transportation in Fifth avenue is subject, only such vehicles as carry their power with them and need no special tracks may be used. So far as the avenue is concerned. the only elevation of any consequence is Murray Hill, which would not prove an obstacle to any form of motor carriage now in use in the big continental cities. Fifth avenue is now almost wholly paved with asphalt, laid at different times and by different contractors. As a result, heavy motor carriages might ruin parts of the avenue in a short time. To avoid such contingencies "One of the great forces to be broken the company is determined to choose only the lightest form of automobile. closely with the trolley service in Madison and Sixth avenues, and hence the question of cheapness plays an imporcompete successfully with the trolley. paratively short and is patronized regubiles may prove a paying investment.

Edward Lauterbach said recently that it was too soon to say whether the company would introduce electricity, compressed air or petroleum, but it was He thought that when the public saw the advantages of a modern electrical coach service which moved about with the speed of the underground trolleys it would not be slow to patronize it and demand a greatly enlarged system of routes through many of the important districts. - Cor. YALE'S NEW COMET.

It Is 180,000,000 Miles From Us and 200,000,000 From the Sun.

Fred L. Chase, assistant astronomer at the Yale observatory, who discovered the recent comet, has recently made several additional discoveries relative to the comet, says the New York Sun. Since Dec. 7, numerous observations have been taken, the comet being well observed at the Yale observatory with the 8 inch equatorial on the nights of Dec. 13, 14 and 15, which were unusually clear.

The comet passed perihelion on about the middle of September at a distance of over 200,000,000 miles from the sun. Its orbit is a parabola, and the comet is now gradually receding from the sun, though the earth is moving toward the comet, so that its brightness is still increasing. They are now about 180,000, 000 miles apart. After a few weeks the earth will draw farther away from the comet, and the latter will rapidly lose for two or three months at least.

Disease is a great and treacherous ocean. Man ever stands upon its shore and gazes out over its calm surface without a thought of danger. It licks his feet-it advances and recedes almost playfully—but all the same it will crack his bones and eat him, and wipe the crimson foam from its jaws as if nothing had happend, as it has been doing ever since the world began.

A man who carelessly saunters along the shore of the insatiate sea of disease, will some day encounter a great storm in the form of some fatal malady and will be engulfed. Because a man does not have to go to bed when he suffers from a trivial indigestion, because he does not have to give up work when he gets nervous and cannot sleep at night, because he can still force down an unsatisfactory meal when he is suffering from loss of appetite, because by strong effort he can add a column of figures with aching head-is no reason that these disorders are trifling or to be neglected. They are the warnings of serious sickness. A man who promptly heeds them, and resorts to the right remedy, will speedily recover his usual health. The man who negative lects them will find that he is in the gripof consumption, some nervous disorder, or some other dread malady, due to improper or insufficient nutrition. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best of all medicines for men and women who suffer in this way. It restores the lost appetite, facilitates the flow of digestive juices, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and tones and builds up the nerves. It cures 98 per cent. of all chronic, bronchial, throat and lung affections, and is an unfailing remedy for nervous prostration. Medicine dealers sell it.

Lawrence Allison Elected Financial Secretary to Fill Out an Unexpired Term. An Interesting Meeting of the Council Last Night.

There was a large attendance last evening at Trades council, but not much business was transacted.

President Eardley was in the chair and after the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee made a report and the following delegates were seated: Leroy Orr, jiggermen; William Lauchlin, plumbers; J. H. Myers, carpenters.

The usual routine business was then transacted, and R. L. That Colonel Hard does not intend to resign his command of the Eighth Ohio is shown by a press dispatch sent out from Akron. It is as follows.

"Colonel Curtis V. Hard, of the Eighth Ohio regiment, was in Akron today on his way home to Wooster from Washington and consented to talk on the demand of his resignation when the National Guard should reorganize. He declared emphatically that he would not resign and said that if the men who had started the fight on him desired to keep it up he would be ready for them and that he would make their 'teeth rattle.'

"He charged that these men were in the scheme simply to secure their own military advancement. Colonel Hard will call a meeting next week of the relatives of the men of the Eighth who are buried in Cuba to let them choose the officer who shall accompany the expedition to Cuba.

A DARING SWIMMER.

Miss Elizabeth Peters Takes Four Swims a Week In Icy Hudson.

The icy cold waters of the Hudson river have no terrors for Miss Elizabeth Peters, who is stopping with friends at Edgewater, N. Y., not two minutes' walk from the Fort Lee ferry. She takes at least four swims a week in the river. She does not take these midwinter baths for the sake of notoriety, for Edgewater is a very quiet place.

"I think there is nothing better in the world than a swim in the cold water," said Miss Peters the other evening. "There is something exhilarating about a swim in cold water that one doesn't experience during the warm weather. I have always enjoyed swimming in cold water. I first tried it in the Elbe river, in Germany, where the weather is pretty cold at times.

"I think winter swimming is healthful. Once under the water you don't feel as cold as you would standing on Engineer John A. George vesterday the bank with the bathing costume on cold air after leaving the water, and always take a brisk rub down. I don't simply take a dip in the cold river, as some might imagine. I couldn't obtain any benefits by such a bath as that. I swim around until I get tired.

"Last March while at South Beach, S. I., I swam against the tide to Hoffman's island, a distance of over two miles, and swam back without a rest. A life saver accompanied me as a matter of safety. I think I can stay in the water in cold weather as long as any other woman in this section and would be willing to try it for the fun of the thing. I think I can swim against the tide as long as any other woman and would like to try that, too." Miss Peters is 20 years old, has rosy cheeks and hardened muscles. During the great storm on Sunday, Nov. 27, she startled the neighbors by donning her bathing suit and taking a short swim. - New York World.

Salvation Army's Novel Device.

The newest and most novel device for collecting money has been put forth by the Salvation Army in New York, and it has met with remarkable success, because it has struck the popular fancy. It is an iron boiling pot, such as is used in every household, suspended from a tripod of red sticks about the height of a man. The inscription is, "Keep the Pot Boiling," and it leaves absolutely no doubt of its object. There is a man in charge, of course, to see that contributions are not stolen. Lawrence Allison Elected Financial Secretary to Fill Out an Unexpired Term. An Interesting Meeting of the Council

There was a large attendance last avening at Trades council, but not much business was transacted.

President Eardley was in the chair and after the minutes had been read and approved the credential committee made a report and the following delegates were seated: Leroy Orr, jiggermen; William Lauchlin, plumbers; J. H. Myers, carpenters.

The usual routine business was then transacted, and R. L. Reeves, of Pittsburg, third vice president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes of America, delivered a very interesting address upon general labor topics. After he had finished Lawrence Allison was elected financial secretary to fill an unexpired term.

WILL NOT RESIGN.

Colonel Hard Is Ready to Fight For His Position.

That Colonel Hard does not intend to resign his command of the Eighth Ohio is shown by a press dispatch sent out from Akron. It is as follows.

"Colonel Curtis V. Hard, of the Eighth Ohio regiment, was in Akron today on his way home to Wooster from Washington and consented to talk on the demand of his resignation when the National Guard should reorganize. He declared emphatically that he would not resign and said that if the men who had started the fight on him desired to keep it up he would be ready for them and that he would make their 'teeth rattle.'

"He charged that these men were in the scheme simply to secure their own military advancement. Colonel Hard will call a meeting next week of the relatives of the men of the Eighth who are buried in Cuba to let them choose the officer who shall accompany the expedition to Cuba.

The icy cold waters of the Hudson the only positive cure now known to river have no terrors for Miss Elizabeth Peters, who is stopping with friends at Edgewater, N. She does not take these midwinter baths for the sake of notoriety, for | floors, while the various church organi-Edgewater is a very quiet place.

"I think there is nothing better in ter," said Miss Peters the other evening. "There is something exhilarating about a swim in cold water that one doesn't experience during the warm weather. I have always enjoyed swimming in cold water. I first tried it in the Elbe river, in Germany, where the weather is pretty cold at times.

"I think winter swimming is healthful. Once under the water you don't feel as cold as you would standing on the bank with the bathing costume on. Of course I don't loiter around in the cold air after leaving the water, and always take a brisk rub down. I don't simply take a dip in the cold river, as some might imagine. I couldn't obtain any benefits by such a bath as that. I swim around until I get tired.

"Last March while at South Beach, S. I., I swam against the tide to Hoffman's island, a distance of over two miles, and swam back without a rest. A life saver accompanied me as a matter of safety. I think I can stay in the water in cold weather as long as any other woman in this section and would be willing to try it for the fun of the thing. I think I can swim against the tide as long as any other woman and would like to try that, too." Miss Peters is 20 years old, has rosy cheeks and hardened muscles. GIANT RAFTS PROPOSED.

French Plan For Insuring the Safety of Transatlantic Passengers.

In connection with the construction of new French transatlantic lines to run between Havre and New York the French government is being urged to test practically a plan to place two great well equipped rafts, so constructed that they cannot be submerged, on each ship. These rafts would be used as shade decks, and in the event of a ship's sinking, as La Bourgogne did, the passengers would have a prospect of being saved.

The French experts who present this scheme would make the raft to be carried forward 82 feet long, 23 feet wide externally and 19 feet wide internally. The after raft would be 100 feet long and of the same widths as the forward raft. The two rafts would temporarily accommodate 2,000 persons. - Special Cable to New York Sun.

THERE is some comfort in the fact that the legislative reunion at Columbus is not for the purpose of enacting laws.

COLONEL BRYAN has had little to say during the past few days, yet no one believes he made a New Year's resolution to do no talking during the year.

DEMOCRATIC candidates for governor seem to be springing up in almost every county. It is needless to say Columbiana has no aspirant for the honor.

BY THE PEOPLE.

The endeavor of a number of state legislatures to elect representatives to the United States senate has again brought on a discussion of the advantages to be derived by a change in the system now in vogue.

For many years the plan in use has been attended by scandal. Few men have been elevated to the highest branch in the legislative department of the government without carrying with them the charge of bribery. In some instances it has been openly made, while in he is charged. others it has been implied. Desperate political battles have been fought, and party organizations have been disrupted. The effect upon the people has at no time been good, tending to produce the belief that every seat in the senate is for sale and the man who is willing to bid highest is entitled to a place among other men who have passed through the same operation. There should be a change. The people should be given the privilege of selecting their representatives in the senate. The will of the majority would rule, and there would be no scandal. Members of state legislatures would not dispose of their votes, and they would carry out the wishes of their constituents. A more wholesome atmosphere would surround politics, and it is not at all unlikely that better men would find places in the senate.

A BOND FROM BELL BROTHERS

Was Asked by the Concern's Attorneys In Cincinnati In Order That It May Bring Suit For Damages Should the Injunction Be Dissolved--The Matter to be Settled Today.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 5.-[Special]-Drausin Wulsin, counsel for George Scott Bros., and C. F. Malsbary, for Brockman Pottery company, applied to Judge S. W. Smith Wednesday to have the bond given by the Bell Pottery company in their injunction suit against the alleged pottery trust, or American Potteries company, raised from $500 to $50,-000. The issue involved is an important one and defendants claim their interests are at stake. Attorney Charles W. Baker resists the application.

The action was taken so the trust, if the injunction is finally dissolved, will have a big bond to fall back on for damages. Judge Smith ordered the Bell company to appear in court today to meet the motion.

The contempt for money and trade, characteristic of Japan, has lost much of its force. Merchants have risen in social standing and have even been advanced to the peerage. Indeed Mr. Fukuzawa, the most influential educator in the empire, declares that it is every man's first duty to make money in order to increase the power of the nation. THERE is some comfort in the fact that the legislative reunion at Columbus is not for the purpose of enacting laws.

COLONEL BRYAN has had little to say during the past few days, yet no one believes he made a New Year's resolution to do no talking during the year.

DEMOCRATIC candidates for governor seem to be springing up in almost every county. It is needless to say Columbiana has no aspirant for the honor.

ATTORNEY GENERAL MONNETT has expressed his willingness to endeavor to prevent the American Potteries company from doing business in Ohio, but it is not at all likely that the gentleman is acquainted with the facts. The pottery trust is not a trust, properly speaking, and for it to come under the provisions of the Ohio law some things are the proclamation from President Mcrequired which the gentlemen in New Kinley, promising protection to the na-York are doubtless too well acquainted with business to undertake.

BY THE PEOPLE.

The endeavor of a number of state legislatures to elect representatives to the United States senate has again brought on a discussion of the advantages to be derived by a change in the system now in vogue.

For many years the plan in use has been attended by scandal. Few men have been elevated to the highest branch in the legislative department of the government without carrying with them the charge of bribery. In some instances it has been openly made, while in others it has been implied. Desperate political battles have been fought, and party organizations have been disrupted. The effect upon the people has at no time been good, tending to produce the belief that every seat in the senate is for sale and the man who is willing to bid highest is entitled to a place among other men who have passed through the same operation.

There should be a change. The people should be given the privilege of selecting their representatives in the senate. The will of the majority would rule, and there would be no scandal. Members of state legislatures would not dispose of their votes, and they would carry out the wishes of their constituents. A more wholesome atmosphere would surround politics, and it is not at all unlikely that better men would find places in the senate.

A BOND FROM BELL BROTHERS

Was Asked by the Concern's Attorneys In Cincinnati In Order That It May Bring Suit For Damages Should the Injunction Be Dissolved--The Matter to be Settled

CINCINNATI, Jan. 5.-[Special]-Drausin Wulsin, counsel for George Scott Bros., and C. F. Malsbary, for Brockman Pottery company, applied to Judge S. W. Smith Wednesday to have the bond given by the Bell Pottery company in their injunction suit against the alleged pottery trust, or American Potteries company, raised from $500 to $50, 000. The issue involved is an important one and defendants claim their interests are at stake. Attorney Charles W Baker resists the application.

The action was taken so the trust, if the injunction is finally dissolved, will have a big bond to fall back on for damages. Judge Smith ordered the Bell company to appear in court today to meet the motion.

Money Making in Japan.

The contempt for money and trade, characteristic of Japan, has lost much of its force. Merchants have risen in social standing and have even been advanced to the peerage. Indeed Mr. Fukuzawa, the most influential educator in the empire, declares that it is every man's first duty to make money in order to increase the power of the nation. Newspapers abound in commercial statistics, and magazines are largely devoted to industrial topics. It is a significant fact that a wealthy merchant, Mr Okura, recently gave $500,000 for the establishment of a commercial college. He had intended to found a school for the children of the poor, but was dissuaded by Marquis Ito. This was the more noteworthy in that it was the first gift for public purposes made by a private individual in Japan.

The Bones Found on the Hill at Fredericktown

ARE THE REMAINS OF MACKALL

His Father and Brother Are of That Opinion, and Mr. Overlander, of Palestine, Is positive--The Bones Were Taken to Fredericktown and Later Passed Into the Possession of Amsi Mackall--Wife of the Unfortunate Man Will Allow His Family to Look After the Burial.

There is now no doubt that the skeleton found Tuesday near Fredericktown Richardson Mackall.

A representative of the News Re-VIEW, in company with J. M. Smith, father-in-law of the deceased, yesterday drove to Fredericktown and found the usually quiet country village in a state of excitement and the only topic of conversation the ghastly find.

The skeleton was discovered Tuesday afternoon by Charles Black, who was tracing coons. It was only by the slightest chance that he came across the remains. He was walking along the edge of what is know as Little Pine run, and had reached a point where the bank was so covered by ice that it was impossible for him to go farther, and he started up the hill and had gone but a short distance when he found the skull, and going a the bones were found. He did not pick them up and they were left where he found them, while he went back to Fredericktown and notified the people of the find. It was at once suspected that the bones were those of A. R. Mackall, and early yesterday morning Doctor Fitzsimmons drove to the home of James Mackall, father of the deceased, who lives about three miles from Fredericktown, and notified him of the finding of the bones. Amsi Mackall, a brother of the deceased, who lives but a short distance from his father's farm, was also notified and returned with Doctor Fitzsimmons. In company with about 35 or 40 men and boys, and guided by Charles Black, the party made their way to the place where the skeleton was lving. If the deceased had hunted for a long time he could not have selected a better spot to have ended his life. The place is surrounded by pine trees and is so secluded that it would be impossible to see any person unless a special visit was made. Surrounded by the trees was a rock probably eight or ten feet across at the rear and which tapered down to a point, at the end of which is a precipice of probably seven or eight feet. Close to the edge of the rock is a small spruce tree. The deceased had climbed the tree and fastened a check line around the first limb and then made a slip noose, and then taken the other end of the line and wrapped it around the limb so that there would be no danger of him failing in his attempt. He had then evidently taken the apron and skirt which he had with him and placed them inside the noose to keep the strap from cutting his neck and then swung off the noose when the body was found. A careful search of the place revealed the fact that a fire had been built near the rock as though the deceased might have remained there for several days before committing his rash act. One person in the party recalled the fact that one night while walking along the creek he had noticed a light near the place where the skeleton was found, but paid no attention to it as he supposed it was caused by a party of coon hunters.

end of the rock to his death. The skirt

and apron were still hanging in the

The bones were picked up and carefully placed in a hunting jacket, the skull being found about eight feet from the balance of the bones, it having rolled down the hill. The line was taken from the tree, and the coat and shoes which the deceased wore were also taken, and the party returned to Fredericktown. There the bones were placed in a small grocery box and nailed up and taken to the home of Amsi Mackall.

The party from here drove to the home of James Mackall and his first words were "Well we have found Ad." He told the circumstances and seemed very much worried, and asked that Mrs. Mackall be notified. The party then went to the home of Amsi Mackall where they viewed the clothes that had been found and the bones. Mr. L. D. Overlander, of East Palestine, at whose home Mr. Mackall was staying when he disappeared, identified the check line as the one that had been taken from his stable, while his wife was able to identify the skirt and apron as belonging to her. The coat was taken, and although it was in delapidated condition, yet it matched the trousers which had been left at the home of Mr. Overlander when Mr. Mackall disappeared. There was no doubt in his mind that the skeleton was all that remained of the late A. R. Mackall, and Amsi Mackall was of the same opinion. They did not seem surprised at the find. Mr. Overlander is all that remains of the late Adam stated that he had hunted two days for the missing man after the return of the horse, and had found the bridle at the end of the old stone bridge near Fredericktown and had then given up the search.

What to do with the remains was discussed, and it was finally decided that J. M. Smith should notify his daughte: Mrs. Mackall, at her home in Wooster, to see where she wished to have them sent, as she had always expressed a wish that he be buried in Wooster if anything should happen.

Mr. L. D. Overlander was instructed to notify Coroner Straughn, and see if he wished to hold an inquest.

Coroner Straughn was notified last tended to at her home. night and instructed Mr. Overlander to secure a justice of the peace to hold the short distance farther the remainder of inquest, and it will take place as soon

Mr. Smith this afternoon succeeded in notifying Mrs. Mackall, and she stated that his relatives could dispose of the remains as they saw fit, and that Mr. Mackall had always expressed a desire to be buried at Mt. Zion.

Women and Portraits.

"It is a curious fact," said an experienced Net. Orleans photographer, "that it isn't the handsomest women who make the handsomest pictures. Why is it? Well, a beauty nearly always owes her charm to something beyond the reach of the lens-to her complexion, her hair or the vivacity of her expression. Very few such women have regu lar features, and when they are reproduced in plain black and white they are at a great disadvantage. Their photographs are generally unsatisfactory and are really not correct as likenesses. On the other hand, a woman who is regarded as homely may have singularly perfect lines, but attracts no attention through lack of color and animation.

The Trading Rat.

Of all curious animals which man has come across and studied probably none can compare with a kind of rat found in the Rocky mountains. Though for a long time well known to trappers and lumbermen, it is only lately that any naturalist has studied these peculiar little beasts.

Although called a rat this little animal is larger than an ordinary rat, with a body eight inches long. It is a very pretty creature, with soft gray fur and a squirrellike tail, easily tamed and a delightful pet. The trappers long ago gave it the name of the "trading rat," from its curious babit of never stealing anything without putting something in its place.

Two young women camping in the highlands of Wyoming left the lid of their cracker box off one night. In the morning all the biscuits were gone and the box was filled with an indescribable mixture of chips, scraps of leather, sticks, bones, dried beans-in fact, everything movable near at hand.

The trading rat builds a very beautiful nest, sometimes two feet in height, and is very elever at storing food. It has a violent fancy for anything of a bright red hue. —Philadelphia Inquirer.

The Bones Found on the Hill at Fredericktown

ARE THE REMAINS OF MACKALL

His Father and Brother Are of That Opinion, and Mr. Overlander, of Palestine, Is Positive--The Bones Were Taken to Fredericktown and Later Passed Into the Possession of Amsi Mackall--Wife of the Unfortunate Man Will Allow His Family to Look After the Burial.

There is now no doubt that the skeleton found Tuesday near Fredericktown is all that remains of the late Adam Richardson Mackall.

A representative of the News Re-VIEW, in company with J. M. Smith, father-in-law of the deceased, yesterday drove to Fredericktown and found the usually quiet country village in a state of excitement and the only topic of conversation the ghastly find.

The skeleton was discovered Tuesday afternoon by Charles Black, who was tracing coons. It was only by the slightest chance that he came across the remains. He was walking along the edge of what is know as Little Pine run, and had reached a point where the bank was so covered by ice that it was impossible for him to go farther, and he started up the hill and had gone but a short distance when he found the skull, and going a short distance farther the remainder of the bones were found. He did not pick them up and they were left where he Fredericktown and notified the people of the find. It was at once suspected that the bones were those of A. R. Mackall, and early yesterday morning Doctor Fitzsimmons drove to the home of James Mackall, father of the deceased, who lives about three miles from Fredericktown, and notified him of the finding of the bones. Amsi Mackall, a brother of the deceased, who lives but a short distance from his father's farm. was also notified and returned with Doctor Fitzsimmons. In company with about 35 or 40 men and boys, and guided by Charles Black, the party made their way to the place where the skeleton was lving. If the deceased had hunted for a long time he could not have selected a better spot to have ended his life. The place is surrounded by pine trees and is so secluded that it would be impossible to see any person unless a special visit was made. Surrounded by the trees was a rock probably eight or ten feet across at the rear and which tapered down to a point, at the end of which is a precipice of probably seven or eight feet. He had then evidently taken the apron and skirt which he had with him and placed them inside the noose to keep the strap from cutting his neck and then swung off the end of the rock to his death. The skirt it? Well, a beauty nearly always owes and apron were still hanging in the

A careful search of the place revealed the fact that a fire had been built near the rock as though the deceased might have remained there for several days before committing his rash act. One person in the party recalled the fact that one night while walking along the creek he had noticed a light near the place where the skeleton was found, but paid no attention to it as he supposed it was caused by a party of coon hunters.

The bones were picked up and carefully placed in a hunting jacket, the skull being found about eight feet from the balance of the bones, it having rolled down the hill. The line was taken from the tree, and the coat and shoes which the deceased wore were also taken, and the party returned to Fredericktown. There the bones were placed in a small grocery box and nailed up and taken to the home of Amsi Mackall.

The party from here drove to the home of James Mackall and his first words were "Well we have found Ad." He told the circumstances and seemed very much worried, and asked that Mrs. Mackall be notified. The party then went to the home of Amsi Mackall where they viewed the clothes that had been found and the bones. Mr. L. D. An elderly man stepped into a big hotel the other day, accompanied by his wife, and asked for a room. When the polite clerk gave him a pen and placed the register before him, he looked visi bly embarrassed, but he took the pen and bent over the book as though he had nerved himself to some desperate task.

He started to write and then stopped and began to think. The clerk, of course, didn't know what the trouble was or else he would have volunteered his services. After a painful pause the ruralist started in to scratching some

After the expiration of fully five minutes the farmer threw down his pen with a sigh of relief, wiped the perspiration from his brow and rejoined his better half, who had been waiting in the lobby during the ordeal. The clerk was curious to see a signature that required such an unusual length of time to execute. The clerk is a solemn man, but he nearly went off into a fit when he saw, in big, round script, this legend:

The Bones Found on the Hill at Fredericktown

ARE THE REMAINS OF MACKALL

His Father and Brother Are of That Opinjon, and Mr. Overlander, of Palestine, Is Positive--The Bones Were Taken to Fredericktown and Later Passed Into the Possession of Amsi Mackall--Wife of the Unfortunate Man Will Allow His Family to Look After the Burial.

There is now no doubt that the skeleton found Tuesday near Fredericktown is all that remains of the late Adam Richardson Mackall.

A representative of the News Re-VIEW, in company with J. M. Smith, father-in-law of the deceased, yesterday drove to Fredericktown and found the usually quiet country village in a state of excitement and the only topic of conversation the ghastly find.

afternoon by Charles Black, who was tracing coons. It was only by the slightest chance that he came across the remains. He was walking along the edge of what is know as Little Pine run, and had reached a point where the bank was so covered by ice that it was impossible for him to go farther, and he started up the hill and had gone but a short distance the bones were found. He did not pick as possible. them up and they were left where he found them, while he went back to Fredericktown and notified the people of the find. It was at once suspected that the bones were those of A. R. Mackall, and early yesterday morning Doctor Fitzsimmons drove to the home of James Mackall, father of the deceased, who lives about three miles from Fredericktown, and notified him of the finding of the bones. Amsi Mackall, a brother of the deceased, who lives but a short distance from his father's farm. was also notified and returned with Doctor Fitzsimmons. In company with about 35 or 40 men and boys, and guided by Charles Black, the party made their way to the place where the skeleton was lving. If the deceased had hunted for a long time he could not have selected a better spot to have ended his life. The place is surrounded by pine trees and is so secluded that it would be impossible to see any person unless a special visit was made. Surrounded by the trees was a rock probably eight or ten feet across at the rear and which tapered down to a point, at the end of which is a precipice of probably seven or eight feet. Close to the edge of the rock is a small spruce tree. The deceased had climbed the tree and fastened a check line around the first limb and then made a slip noose, and then taken the other end of the line and wrapped it around the limb so that there would be no danger of him failing in his attempt. He had then evidently taken the apron and skirt which he had with him and placed them inside the noose to keep the strap from cutting his neck and then swung off the end of the rock to his death. The skirt and apron were still hanging in the noose when the body was found. A careful search of the place revealed the fact that a fire had been built near the rock as though the deceased might have remained there for several days before committing his rash act. One person in the party recalled the fact that he had noticed a light near the place where the skeleton was found, but paid no attention to it as he supposed it was caused by a party of coon hunters.

The bones were picked up and carefully placed in a hunting jacket, the skull being found about eight feet from down the hill. The line was taken from the tree, and the coat and shoes which the deceased wore were also taken, and the party returned to Fredericktown. There the bones were placed in a small grocery box and nailed up and taken to the home of Amsi Mackall.

The party from here drove to the home of James Mackall and his first words were "Well we have found Ad." He told the circumstances and seemed very much worried, and asked that Mrs. Mackall be notified. The party then went to the home of Amsi Mackall where they viewed the clothes that had been found and the bones. Mr. L. D. Overlander, of East Palestine, at whose home Mr. Mackall was staying when he disappeared, identified the check line as the one that had been taken from his stable, while his wife was able to identify the skirt and apron as belonging to her. The coat was taken, and although it was in a very delapidated condition, yet it matched the trousers which had been left at the home of Mr. Overlander when Mr. Mackall disappeared. There was no doubt in his mind that the skeleton was all that remained of the late A. R. Mackall, and Amsi Mackall was of the same opinion. They did not seem surprised at the find. Mr. Overlander stated that he had hunted two days for the missing man after the return of the horse, and had found the bridle at the end of the old stone bridge near Fredericktown and had then given up the search.

What to do with the remains was discussed, and it was finally decided that J. M. Smith should notify his daughte:, The skeleton was discovered Tuesday Mrs. Mackall, at her home in Wooster. to see where she wished to have them here from Lisbon to attend to business sent, as she had always expressed a wish that he be buried in Wooster if anything should happen.

Mr. L. D. Overlander was instructed to notify Coroner Straughn, and see if he wished to hold an inquest.

Coroner Straughn was notified last tended to at her home. night and instructed Mr. Overlander to when he found the skull, and going a secure a justice of the peace to hold the short distance farther the remainder of inquest, and it will take place as soon

Mr. Smith this afternoon succeeded in notifying Mrs. Mackall, and she stated that his relatives could dispose of the remains as they saw fit, and that Mr. Mackall had always expressed a desire to be buried at Mt. Zion.

Women and Portraits.

"It is a curious fact," said an experienced Net. Orleans photographer, "that it isn't the handsomest women who make the handsomest pictures. Why is it? Well, a beauty nearly always owes her charm to something beyond the reach of the lens-to her complexion, her hair or the vivacity of her expression. Very few such women have regu lar features, and when they are repro duced in plain black and white they are at a great disadvantage. Their photographs are generally unsatisfactory and are really not correct as likenesses. On one night while walking along the creek the other hand, a woman who is regarded as homely may have singularly perfect lines, but attracts no attention through lack of color and animation.

"I'll cite you a queer instance: A dozen or so years ago Maude Branscombe was the most popular model in the United States for photographic 'art studios.' Her best pose was as a nun, the balance of the bones, it having rolled and her pictured face was strikingly beautiful. Thousands upon thousands of people have raved over her loveliness, but the real Miss Branscombe, whom I had the pleasure of knowing, was a demure, pale little woman who would never in the world attract the slightest attention in a crowd. Without a doubt she was passed unnoticed by many a person who treasured her portrait as a marvel."-New Orleans Times-Demo-

The Trading Rat.

Of all curious animals which man has come across and studied probably none can compare with a kind of rat found in the Rocky mountains. Though for a long time well known to trappers any naturalist has studied these peculiar little beasts.

Although called a rat this little animal is larger than an ordinary rat, with a body eight inches long. It is a very pretty creature, with soft gray fur and a squirrellike tail, easily tamed and a delightful pet. The trappers long ago gave it the name of the "trading rat," from its curious habit of never stealing anything without putting something in its place.

Two young women camping in the highlands of Wyoming left the lid of their cracker box off one night. In the morning all the biscuits were gone and the box was filled with an indescribable mixture of chips, scraps of leather, sticks, bones, dried beans-in fact, everything movable near at hand.

The trading rat builds a very beautiful nest, sometimes two feet in height, and is very clever at storing food. It has a violent fancy for anything of a bright red hue. - Philadelphia Inquirer.

ONE TAKEN TO CITY HALL

Where He Was Given an Opportunity to Explain Just How It Happened That a Friendly Game Ended In a Row-- A Plain Drunk Given the Usual Dose.

The East End young men propose to put a Rugby football team in the field mext year, and every day or two in-, dalge in a practice game.

They have learned the essential features of the sport, but yesterday afternoon while having a practice game Harry Herbert and Daniel Stevens became angry, and as is usual in most Rugby football games they forgot that one of the points of the contest is to see how rough one can use his opponent without becoming angry. Therefore their part of the contest wound up in a rough and tumble fight in which Stevens came out second best with a badly bruised face.

Officer Terrence appeared on the scene and put an end to the fight. Stevens was taken to the home of a neighbor where his battered and bruised face was washed, and he was made as com-Tortable as possible before taking his trolley ride with Officer Terrance to the office of Mayor Bough. He did not enboy the ride to any great extent, and when ushered before his honor told the story of how the trouble occurred and filled him with tales of tackles, forward passes, end runs and line bucks. After hearing the story his honor released Stevens upon his own recognizance until he hears the other side of the story.

Mayor Bough had just one case to dispose of this morning and only a few moments were occupied. Last evening Alfred K. Adams got drunk, and durang his rambles along Second street wandered into a hotel in that section of the city. He sat there a short time and then he began to see things which are not the best objects in the world to look apon by a man in his condition. He went out in the street and wandered into Locust alley where he was caught in the police net by Officer McMillan. The patrol was called and he was soon in jail, although the police had to carry him for he was too drunk to walk. This morning he arranged to pay a fine craft, where the men stood, each with of $6.60 and went his way, promising those in the mayor's office he would and a revolver in the other, the animals never be there again.

Charles Gallagher is still lingering as a guest of the city, he not having arranged to pay his fine of $54.60.

No one knows where Milborn is, and the charge of gambling which is against him is unsettled as yet.

On the River.

The continued warm weather has had the desired effect upon the river and at the present time there is no ice going down the Ohio. The river forecast, as the matter stands, is that it will rise slightly. Rivermen are predicting coal water again, and today in the pools the not any too many boats and barges in to attack men on the sound. - Special port to handle the coal. It is estimated St. Louis Globe-Democrat. among coal operators that 2,000,000 bushels of coal could be gotten out on a rise if it comes within the next two or three days.

The marks at the wharf this morning showed a slight rise, and the marks registered 7.8 feet. The Ben Hur got up yesterday and is down tonight. The Greenwood was up today and had a fair Trip. Business along the river is fair for this time of the year.

ATTACKED BY SEA LIONS.

Six Boatloads of Fishermen Rescued In the Nick of Time.

The steamer New England, which arrived at Seattle, Wash., recently from Queen Charlotte sound, brings word of a desperate encounter between sea lions and Boston fishermen. Six boatloads of men, when a mile from the steamer, found that they had allowed themselves to drift near a dozen rocky islands in the sound. Suddenly they were surrounded by a herd of walruses. There were 1,000 seals in the herd, and the males were as big as heavy draft horses. The men signaled to the steamer and turned to meet the terrible onslaught.

With a mighty roaring noise the sea lions approached the boat from all directions. A few feet from the frail an iron headed halibut club in one hand hesitated. Then one monster male sprang at the foremost boat, crunching to matchwood an oar that was rammed down his open mouth as he advanced This was followed by a blow on the head and a bullet through the eye, which momentarily discomfited the sea

This gave the men another respite, though the boats were fairly on the backs of the plunging monsters. The end of the fishermen would have soon come, had not the steamer in the nick of time rammed its way through the densely packed herd and lowered rope ladders to the men, by which every one of them escaped to the deck. Before the last man reached the steamer the boats operators are getting ready in case the bad been smashed to driftwood. This is water arrives. The trouble is, there are the first time sea lions have been known

Miss Josephine Marie Deals With the Question In a Novel.

VIEWS OF A NEW YORK WOMAN.

Says the Nuptial Knot Is Tied For Life-"Let No Man Put Asunder" Tries to Show Christians Should Never Dissolve Marriage Ties-Some of the Passages Bearing on Divorce.

New York society women are publicly assuming a hostile attitude toward the practice of divorce. Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer recently published a list of persons of the first social prominence and excluded every name that had ever figured in a divorce case. Now appears a book written by one of the youngest women in society condemning divorce through the medium of fiction. Miss Josephine Marie, in a novel called "Let No Man Put Asunder," has expressed with great emphasis the Catholic point of view in regard to this social problem.

Miss Marie is the youngest daughter of the retired broker Joseph Marie of New York and the niece of Peter Marie, who has figured in New York society for many years. Miss Marie's social position is one that has enabled her to know the most prominent people and to observe all the inner workings of "so-

The young author cares more for the church, however, than she does for social gayeties. She was educated in the Convent of the Sacred Heart and now spends the greater part of her time in the charitable work connected with St. Francis Xavier's church. Personally Miss Josephine Marie is a charmingly spirituelle young woman, with a pale, delicate face and dark brown eyes and hair.

Miss Marie's book is not written for Catholics alone. It is for all readers who like a wholesome, thoughtfully written story. Miss Marie is very unwilling that the public should think of her as a Catholic woman expounding Catholic doctrines for Catholic readers. 'Let No Man Put Asunder' will undoubtedly be one of the most widely read books of the season. It has been most attractively brought out by a New York firm of publishers.

The crisis of the book is a woman's temptation to desert her husband in order to marry his brother. Esperance le Clerque, orphan and Catholic, is loved by two brothers. The one whose love she returns is made through the other's treachery to seem unfaithful to her. When she has become the wife of the man who has deceived her, she discovers his deceit. She is urged to divorce herself. Catholic advice saves her. She sends away the man she loves and spends her life with her husband, who subsequently loses his sight in rescuing from fire the brother he has injured.

The passages bearing on divorce are succinct and emphatic.

"When the marriage has been valid," says the heroine at one point, "nothing can dissolve the tie."

The man who has deceived her asks of Esperance, "Wha; would you do if you were to marry and then find it was for the worse?"

"Be faithful to my promises, of course, monsieur," was the prompt re-

The hero says: "Divorce is nothing less than the upheaval of society. A light regard of the marriage tie, degrading wifehood and motherhood, saps the national life, leading it to destruction."

"Divorce, desecrating home, inevitably lowers woman and deprives the offspring of at least one natural protector. "

"It is difficult to see how any Christian could marry a divorced person without qualm of conscience. For a Catholic it would be an impossibility."

"He is still your busband," says the priest when the broken hearted wife appeals to him, "and your duty, hard though it is, is clear. No assistance from the state is necessary; no physical, temporal harm can reach you, and, my daughter, no moral evil either."

The wife, accepting this advice, says to her husband:

"I am yours, Austin. Nothing in this life can sever us. Never shall I in thought, word or deed be disloyal to my vow."-New York World.

A Hero For the Sake of Science.

Professor Grassi's discovery that the Roman malaria is spread by a particular species of gnats has been certified in a curious manner at the Santo Spirito hospital at Rome. All attempts to communicate the disease to animals had failed, when a patient in the hospital volunteered to have the experiment tried on himself. He was exposed to the gnats, developed the fever, his blood showing malaria bacilli, and was then treated with quinine. The doctors think that they are now in a way to discover a serum that will render people immune to the malaria. - Chicago Times-Herald.

They have already decided that half past 7 is late enough for dinner before a ball and that at their dances the lights shall be put out at 2 a. m.-London Daily Telegraph.] Most excellent matrons, we hail you

When success, as we hope, your endeavors With ultimate triumph will crown! Tis a difficult task you're attempting. Your efforts may cost you most dear. In the name, though, of thousands of vic-

And wish you a well earned renown

We pray you to still persevere!

Rest not on your social crusading, Your zeal in no manner abate Till, having made dinner more early, Your dancing make not quite so late, And then, these intentions accomplished, To lassitude pray do not yield, Since still, for your praiseworthy efforts, There's such an unlimited field.

Abuses on all sides are waiting, Which surely you never will shirk. The "at home" in itself will afford you A chance for a full season's work, And when you have done it "at homers" Now blocked on inadequate stairs Or gasping for breath in hot corners Will mention you all in their prayers.

Assuredly, too, as reformers The chance you will eagerly seize To regulate somewhat the scandal That's rampant at "five o'clock teas." You will find in the "musical evening" A fortress you boldly should storm And unearth in the ethics of "calling" A score of odd things to reform.

Nor need you, your purpose effected, Alexanderlike, sit down and weep. There are tasks on this side the Atlantic Which you in employment will keep. Society here suffers sorely

ONE TAKEN TO CITY HALL

Where He Was Given an Opportunity to Explain Just How It Happened That a Friendly Game Ended In a Row-- A Plain Drunk Given the Usual Dose.

The East End young men propose to put a Rugby football team in the field mext year, and every day or two in-, dalge in a practice game.

They have learned the essential features of the sport, but yesterday afternoon while having a practice game Harry Herbert and Daniel Stevens became angry, and as is usual in most Rugby football games they forgot that one of the points of the contest is to see how rough one can use his opponent without becoming angry. Therefore their part of the contest wound up in a rough and tumble fight in which Stevens came out second best with a badly bruised face.

Officer Terrence appeared on the scene and put an end to the fight. Stevens was taken to the home of a neighbor where his battered and bruised face was washed, and he was made as comfortable as possible before taking his trolley ride with Officer Terrance to the office of Mayor Bough. He did not engoy the ride to any great extent, and when ushered before his honor told the story of how the trouble occurred and filled him with tales of tackles, forward passes, end runs and line bucks. After hearing the story his honor released Stevens upon his own recognizance until he hears the other side of the story.

Mayor Bough had just one case to dispose of this morning and only a few moments were occupied. Last evening Alfred K. Adams got drunk, and during his rambles along Second street wandered into a hotel in that section of the city. He sat there a short time and then he began to see things which are not the best objects in the world to look apon by a man in his condition. He went out in the street and wandered into Locust alley where he was caught | males were as big as heavy draft horses. in the police net by Officer McMillan. The patrol was called and he was soon in jail, although the police had to carry him for he was too drunk to walk. This morning he arranged to pay a fine craft, where the men stood, each with of $6.60 and went his way, promising an iron headed halibut club in one hand those in the mayor's office he would and a revolver in the other, the animals never be there again.

Charles Gallagher is still lingering as a guest of the city, he not having arranged to pay his fine of $54.60.

Professor Grassi's discovery that the Roman malaria is spread by a particular species of gnats has been certified in a curious manner at the Santo Spirito hospital at Rome. All attempts to communicate the disease to animals had failed, when a patient in the hospital volunteered to have the experiment tried on himself. He was exposed to the gnats, developed the fever, his blood showing malaria bacilli, and was then treated with quinine. The doctors think that they are now in a way to discover a serum that will render people immune to the malaria. - Chicago Times-Herald.

A New Parliamentary Insult. We have received from Brussels a veritable find in the shape of a new insult uttered in the Belgian chamber by a Socialist deputy, M. Demblon, who referred to another deputy by whom he

Old Folger-I've got a letter from my son out west.

Golfin-So? What's Tom doing now? Old Folger-That's what I can't make out. He says he is engaged in the destruction of weeds. Now, that may mean he's smoking a good many cigara or that he is trying to induce some widow to make a second venture or it may simply mean that he is doing farm work .- Boston Transcript.

The Closure In the Baltroom.

[The most prominent matrons of Philadelphia have met in solemn conclave to reorganize Philadelphia society and the hours it should keep. They have already decided that half past 7 is late enough for dinner before a ball and that at their dances the lights shall be put out at 2 a. m.-London Daily Telegraph.] Most excellent matrons, we hail you

And wish you a well earned renown When success, as we hope, your endeavors With ultimate triumph will crown! Tis a difficult task you're attempting. Your efforts may cost you most dear. In the name, though, of thousands of viotims

We pray you to still persevere!

Rest not on your social crusading, Your zeal in no manner abate Till, having made dinner more early, Your dancing make not quite so late, And then, these intentions accomplished, To lassitude pray do not yield, Since still, for your praiseworthy efforts There's such an unlimited field.

Abuses on all sides are waiting, Which surely you never will shirk. The "at home" in itself will afford you A chance for a full season's work, And when you have done it "at homers' Now blocked on inadequate stairs Or gasping for breath in hot corners Will mention you all in their prayers.

Assuredly, too, as reformers The chance you will eagerly seize To regulate somewhat the scandal That's rampant at "five o'clock teas." You will find in the "musical evening" A fortress you boldly should storm And unearth in the ethics of "calling" A score of odd things to reform.

Nor need you, your purpose effected, Alexanderlike, sit down and weep. There are tasks on this side the Atlantic Which you in employment will keep. Society here suffers sorely

From the ills that you meet to discuss, So when you've converted your neighbors Oh, please send a mission to us! -London Truth.

ONE TAKEN TO CITY HALL

Where He Was Given an Opportunity to Explain Just How It Happened That a Friendly Game Ended In a Row-- A Plain Drunk Given the Usual Dose.

The East End young men propose to put a Rugby football team in the field mext year, and every day or two in-, dalge in a practice game.

They have learned the essential features of the sport, but yesterday afternoon while having a practice game Harry Herbert and Daniel Stevens became angry, and as is usual in most Rugby football games they forgot that one of the points of the contest is to see how rough one can use his opponent without becoming angry. Therefore their part of the contest wound up in a rough and tumble fight in which Stevens came out second best with a badly bruised face.

Officer Terrence appeared on the scene and put an end to the fight. Stevens was taken to the home of a neighbor where his battered and bruised face was washed, and he was made as comfortable as possible before taking his trolley ride with Officer Terrance to the office of Mayor Bough. He did not en-Toy the ride to any great extent, and when ushered before his honor told the story of how the trouble occurred and filled him with tales of tackles, forward passes, end runs and line bucks. After hearing the story his honor released Stevens upon his own recognizance until he hears the other side of the story.

Mayor Bough had just one case to dispose of this morning and only a few moments were occupied. Last evening Alfred K. Adams got drunk, and during his rambles along Second street wandered into a hotel in that section of the city. He sat there a short time and then he began to see things which are not the best objects in the world to look apon by a man in his condition. He went out in the street and wandered into Locust alley where he was caught in the police net by Officer McMillan. The patrol was called and he was soon in jail, although the police had to carry him for he was too drunk to walk. This morning he arranged to pay a fine of $6.60 and went his way, promising an iron headed halibut club in one hand never he there again

Charles Gallagher is still lingering as aguest of the city, he not having arranged to pay his fine of $54.60.

No one knows where Milborn is, and the charge of gambling which is against him is unsettled as yet.

On the River.

The continued warm weather has had the desired effect upon the river and at the present time there is no ice going down the Ohio. The river forecast, as the matter stands, is that it will rise slightly. Rivermen are predicting coal water again, and today in the pools the Operators are getting ready in case the water arrives. The trouble is, there are not any too many boats and barges in port to handle the coal. It is estimated St. Louis Globe-Democrat. among coal operators that 2,000,000 bushels of coal could be gotten out on a rise if it comes within the next two or three days.

The marks at the wharf this morning showed a slight rise, and the marks registered 7.8 feet. The Ben Hur got at a recent Monday evening dance. up yesterday and is down tonight. The Greenwood was up today and had a fair Trip. Business along the river is fair for this time of the year.

Granted a License.

Yesterday William M. Miller and Miss Janet M. Murphy, of Industry, were granted a marriage license in Pittsburg. The young couple are well known in this place.

Mrs. Henry T. Sloane Was a Belle of Brooklyn Heights Society.

Mrs. Henry T Sloane, whose separation from her husband is at present stirring the society of Manhattan, was formerly a Brooklyn girl and well known in the Heights society It is a generation since she lived in Brooklyn, and the fact of her having been a reigning belle on the Heights is not generally recalled today and will probably be in the line of news to the younger generation As Miss Jessie Robbins, early in the seventies, she was one of the most conspicuous figures, and the old Robbins mansion in Monroe place was a center of gavety

There are few more beautiful and distinguished looking women in the upper social life of Manhattan than Mrs. Sloane, and few who have risen to such importance. Not a Knickerbocker by birth any more than was her husband, by finesse and by judgment Mrs. Sloane has gradually come to be one of the leaders of the smart set, actually contesting within the past year or so social supremacy with Mrs. John Jacob Astor and Mrs. Ogden Mills.

It has even been rumored in the set that this season Mrs. Sloane intended to make her very beautiful house in East Seventy-second street the center of New York gayety, and that next year, with the entry of her daughter into society she would rule as Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish is starting out to do this winter. But the events of the past few days have changed the programme, and for a time at least Mrs. Sloane seems destined to go into at least temporary retirement. Her social campaign has attracted attention, and no wonder. Hardly less could have been expected of the former Miss Jessie Robbins, whose personal appearance and charm mer of prominence and of the old Heights set, now between the ages of 40 and 50, well recall. -Brooklyn Eagle.

ATTACKED BY SEA LIONS.

Six Boatloads of Fishermen Rescued In the Nick of Time.

The steamer New England, which arrived at Seattle, Wash., recently from Queen Charlotte sound, brings word of a desperate encounter between sea lions and Boston fishermen. Six boatloads of men, when a mile from the steamer, found that they had allowed themselves to drift near a dozen rocky islands in the sound. Suddenly they were surrounded by a herd of walruses. There were 1,000 seals in the herd, and the males were as big as heavy draft horses. The men signaled to the steamer and turned to meet the terrible onslaught.

With a mighty roaring noise the sea lions approached the boat from all directions. A few feet from the frail craft, where the men stood, each with those in the mayor's office he would and a revolver in the other, the animals herself. Catholic advice saves her. She hesitated. Then one monster male sends away the man she loves and sprang at the foremost boat, crunching to match wood an oar that was rammed down his open mouth as he advanced This was followed by a blow on the head and a bullet through the eve. which momentarily discomfited the sea

> This gave the men another respite. though the boats were fairly on the backs of the plunging monsters. The end of the fishermen would have soon come, had not the steamer in the nick of time rammed its way through the densely packed herd and lowered rope ladders to the men, by which every one of them escaped to the deck. Before the last man reached the steamer the boats had been smashed to driftwood. This is the first time sea lions have been known to attack men on the sound. - Special

SOCIETY RETIRED EARLY.

Philadelphia's First Experiment Under New Law Successful.

Society's early closing movement was tried for the first time in Philadelphia Threats of opposition by the younger element were not carried out, and the stemp of approval set at the dance is taken as establishing a society law.

A society leader said to the New York World correspondent the other night:

"The crusade against late hours was made a necessity by the increasing demands on society Women were becoming physical wrecks before the season and we deemed it incumbent to take vigorous steps toward accomplishing this end.

Another Solomon.

Mayor Nichols of Wilkesbarre took a novel way of teaching scolding neighing a wall paper store. It is expected bors a lesson When they were brought they will begin business within a few before him, each side wanted to tell her story first, and raising both hands in an appeal for silence the mayor pulled out his watch and put on a dignified and mysterious air An oppressive silence followed in the mayor's court, and for several minutes the chief magistrate of the city sat holding his watch. Not a person stirred, nor was there a word spoken. Then he arose and quietly tiptoed out of the room. A sign to the chief of police, and he also went out, the other officers following The two neighbors and their witnesses sat still for awhile, and then the mayor's lesson dawned upon them. His rebuke of silence should have a good effect.

SOCIETY ON DIVORCE.

Miss Josephine Marie Deals With the Question In a Novel.

VIEWS OF A NEW YORK WOMAN.

Says the Nuptial Knot Is Tied For Life-"Let No Man Put Asunder" Tries to Show Christians Should Never Dissolve Marriage Ties-Some of the Passages Bearing on Divorce.

New York society women are publicly assuming a hostile attitude toward the practice of divorce. Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer recently published a list of persons of the first social prominence and excluded every name that had ever figured in a divorce case. Now appears a book written by one of the youngest women in society condemning divorce through the medium of fiction. Miss Josephine Marie, in a novel called "Let No Man Put Asunder," has expressed with great emphasis the Catholic point of view in regard to this social problem.

Miss Marie is the youngest daughter of the retired broker Joseph Marie of New York and the niece of Peter Marie, who has figured in New York society for many years. Miss Marie's social position is one that has enabled her to know the most prominent people and to observe all the inner workings of "society."

The young author cares more for the church, however, than she does for social gayeties. She was educated in the Convent of the Sacred Heart and now spends the greater part of her time in the charitable work connected with St. Francis Xavier's church. Personally Miss Josephine Marie is a charmingly spirituelle young woman, with a pale, delicate face and dark brown eyes and hair.

Miss Marie's book is not written for Catholics alone. It is for all readers who like a wholesome, thoughtfully written story. Miss Marie is very unwilling that the public should think of her as a Catholic woman expounding Catholic doctrines for Catholic readers. 'Let No Man Put Asunder' will undoubtedly be one of the most widely read books of the season. It has been most attractively brought out by a New York firm of publishers.

The crisis of the book is a woman's temptation to desert her husband in order to marry his brother. Esperance le Clerque, orphan and Catholic, is loved by two brothers. The one whose love she returns is made through the other's treachery to seem unfaithful to her. When she has become the wife of the man who has deceived her, she discovers his deceit. She is urged to divorce spends her life with her husband, who subsequently loses his sight in rescuing from fire the brother he has injured.

The passages bearing on divorce are succinct and emphatic.

"When the marriage has been valid," says the heroine at one point, "nothing can dissolve the tie."

The man who has deceived her asks of Esperance, "Wha; would you do if you were to marry and then find it was for the worse?"

"Be faithful to my promises, of course, monsieur," was the prompt re-

The hero says: "Divorce is nothing less than the upheaval of society. A light regard of the marriage tie, degrading wifehood and motherhood, saps the national life, leading it to destruction."

"Divorce, desecrating home, inevitably lowers woman and deprives the offspring of at least one natural protect-

"It is difficult to see how any Christian could marry a divorced person without qualm of conscience. For a Catholic it would be an impossibility.'

"He is still your busband," says the priest when the broken hearted wife appeals to him, "and your duty, hard though it is, is clear. No assistance from the state is necessary; no physical, temporal harm can reach you, and, my daughter, no moral evil either."

The wife, accepting this advice, says to her husband:

"I am yours, Austin. Nothing in this life can sever us. Never shall I in thought, word or deed be disloyal to my vow."-New York World.

The Closure In the Ballroom.

[The most prominent matrons of Philadelphia have met in solemn concluve to reorganize Philadelphia society and the hours it should keep. They have already decided that half past 7 is late enough for dinner before a ball and that at their dances the lights shall be put out at 2 a. m.-London Daily Telegraph.]

Most excellent matrons, we hall you And wish you a well earned renown When success, as we hope, your endeavors With ultimate triumph will crown! Tis a difficult task you're attempting. Your efforts may cost you most dear. In the name, though, of thousands of vic-

We pray you to still persevere!

Rest not on your social crusading, Your zeal in no manner abate Till, having made dinner more early, Your dancing make not quite so late,

And then, these intentions accomplished. To lassitude pray do not yield, Since still, for your praiseworthy efforts, There's such an unlimited field.

Abuses on all sides are waiting, Which surely you never will shirk. The "at home" in itself will afford you A chance for a full season's work, And when you have done it "at homers' Now blocked on inadequate stairs Or gasping for breath in hot corners Will mention you all in their prayers.

Assuredly, too, as reformers The chance you will eagerly seize To regulate somewhat the scandal That's rampant at "five o'clock teas."
You will find in the "musical evening" A fortress you boldly should storm And unearth in the ethics of "calling" A score of odd things to reform.

Nor need you, your purpose effected, Alexanderlike, sit down and weep. There are tasks on this side the Atlantic Which you in employment will keep. Society here suffers sorely

From the ills that you meet to discuss, So when you've converted your neighbors Oh, please send a mission to us! -London Truth.

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympa. thizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Old Folger-I've got a letter from Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent work.

PATRONIZE UNION CLERKS.

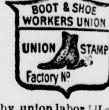

mbers of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases. Endorsed by the A. F. of L.

COLOR IS CHANGED EACH QUARTER. Good only curing months named in lower left hand corner and sproperly signed, and STAMPED with the number of the Local UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe work-ers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe, is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white UNION MADE HATS.

This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buffcolored paper. It is placed on every union made has before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a label from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in registered his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product

Sergeant Palmer's Offer to Capture His Excellency.

BEASON OF HAWKINS' REFUSAL

The Recklessness and Boldness of the Attempt Would Have Insured Its Success. Aguinaldo's Head Was Fearfully Swollen at the Time--Not Reduced Much as Yet,

Where is Aguinaldo? What schemes

These are pertinent questions at the present time, and are of decided interest to the friends and relatives of the boys who are now doing duty at Manila.

nila, while we were yet on board the Zealandia, out in the waters of the bay. General Anderson was then in supreme command of the land forces, General Merritt not having arrived. All the Generals and Colonels had been ordered to assemble on board the China, the flagship, and the result was that it was determined to land and form encampments. General Anderson sent his aidde-camp to General Aguinaldo's home, about seven miles below Manila, asking for the loan of drays and water buffalo, for the purpose of hauling the heavy baggage to camp, after our landing on the beach. The aid-de-camp was met by Aguinaldo's aid-de-camp, the latter, a Massachusetts adventurer, making answer, in a supercilious and indifferent

"His Excellency is busy and cannot be disturbed."

No account was taken of the objections made to such treatment by the indignant American aid-de-camp, and the latter finally returned to the China and made report to General Anderson of his reception and refusal. Anderson and his staff were mad all the way through by this time and the aid-de-camp was given a type written message to Aguinaldo, with instructions to see that it was placed in the hands of the insurgent leader. Anderson's messenger was again met by the Massachusetts adventurer, and the fellow now made cool annot be disturbed.

Only this and nothing more, and the aid-de-camp representing the United States was ignominiously turned down. Colonel A. L. Hawkins was mad, from center to circumference, as he related the incident after coming on board the Zealandia, and he said, in winding up the yarn, pointing to Aguinaldo's head-

The writer thought over the Colonel's remarks and finally went to the latter's stateroom and asked for a hearing, which was at once accorded, and the following proposition was made:

"Colonel, if you will let me pick 48 men from the rank and file of the regiment, accompanied by two sergeants, with myself in command, each man to be armed with rifle and revolver; and further have the Callaoa, with her rapid fire guns to back us up, and land my command from a launch on the beach one-half mile below Aguinaldo's residence, at a stated hour tonight, I'll agree to bring Aguinaldo and his aid-decamp on board the Zealandia, dead or

THE PRICE OF PEPPER.

It Helped to Change the History of the Old World.

In the sixteenth century all the pepper consumed in England was bought by the English merchants from the Dutch, who brought it from India. Owing to racial jealousy, the Dutch traders in 1599 raised the cost from 3 shillings to 6 shillings per pound. This petty display of ill feeling caused considerable annoyance to the English merchants and aroused in them that feeling of independence which has always been so characteristic of our race.

They determined to import their pepper direct from India in their own ships, and for this purpose formed a company, called the Governor and Company of Merchants of London Trad-"His Excellency is now sleeping and ing to the East Indies, and which in latter days became eventually known as the East India company.

Their first voyages embroiled them in almost innumerable quarrels with the Dutch and Portuguese, and for a time the venture proved a financial failure. It was not until 1615 that the company became successful and obtained lucrative treaties, owing to their decisively defeating the Portuguese.

From this time on their possessions gradually increased, slowly at first, and then very rapidly, until, by the wise and beneficial management of such men as Clive, Warren Hastings and Cornwallis, they exercised sovereignty over the greater portion of India.

In this manner it happened that an increase in the price of pepper momentously affected the history of mankind. -London Standard.

SELMONT'S NEW PAPER

First Issue Attacks Vanderbilt and Other Rich Men.

IT ADVOCATES AN INCOME TAX

O. H. P. Belmont of the Banking Fire Is Its Founder-The New Publica tion Declares Its Opposition to Trusts and Corporations and It Policy on Democratic Politics.

Oliver H. P. Belmont has started a paper called The Verdict in New York he first number of which appeared or Dec. 19. It is a weekly illustrated sheet the illustrations consisting of colored cartoons after the style of Puck and Judge, and the paper resembles those papers as to size. Judged by the firs ssue, The Verdict will not be a humor ous paper aside from the illustrations It aims to deal seriously with men and affairs. The men it deals with editori ally and pictorially in the first issue are handled without gloves. It is par ticularly severe on the Whitneys, the Vanderbilts, on J. Pierpont Morgan and Chauncey M. Depew. The principal cartoon represents Cornelius Vanderville grinding a street organ, with J. Pier pont Morgan standing beside the instrument, a tambourine in one hand and the string attached to a monkey in the other. The monkey, with the face of Chauncey M. Depew, stands before a window in which is Thomas C. Platt. about to place a penny labeled "Sena torship" in the animal's hat. A report er was told by a person connected with the paper that this cartoon was drawn after Mr. Belmont's own suggestions.

Mr. Belmont is a member of the banking firm of August Belmont & Co. In the salutatory of his new paper occurs the following declaration of its policy:

"In politics The Verdict will stand for the principles of Democracy as it understands them and for truth as the latter finds display. It will before an election care more for a man than a measure. It will read your list of candidates twice before it reads your platform once. The Verdict will be a Democrat. But no one need construe that to mean that it will support a bad man for place. Virtue and villainy have wide, impartial distribution. No party in its personnel has a monopoly of either. There are honest Republicans just as there are others who deserve the stocks. There are upright Democrats just as there are others who should be in jail. But there are worse things than free silver 16 to 1, and worse men than Bryan-who is himself worthy enough and comes only to be a menace as the exponent of free silverand The Verdict is free to say, as it stands on the threshold of an existence which shall at the worst be an honest one, that should Bryan and free silver again find Democratic adoption it will support them both.

'The Verdict favors an income tax, as a measure at once honest, fair, equal and just to all. Such a tax has the merit of being direct. It does not agree in abject public surrender to such outfits as, for example, the Metropolitan railroad, which recently, without leave obtained or license given, coolly made an endless pitfall of entire Broadway And while we are on the subject, let it be said that The Verdict is in favor of New York owning its own street franchises and does not indorse a surrender of its thoroughfares, rentless and priceless, to become mere hunting grounds of money for monopolies. Perhaps the best story told of him is one showing how his quick wit disposed of a rival. When he was at the Russian court, Fox sent there as a sort of embassador of his own a man named Adair, the son of a surgeon.

One day the empress, speaking in French, said to Lord Whitworth:

"Is he a very important man, this M. Adair?"

"Not so very, madame," replied Lord Whitworth, "although his father was a grand saigneur," a remark which readers of French will recognize as a very good pun, for the word as used by Lord Whitworth means "blood letter," while by its sound it also meant a great lord. -Youth's Companion.

Cats and Monkeys.

All animals, even the wildest, can be subjected in some way to the dominion of man and be domesticated to some extent. Here, for instance, are two very curious facts about cats. No account was taken of the objections made to such treatment by the indignant American aid-de-camp, and the latter finally returned to the China and made report to General Anderson of his reception and refusal. Anderson and his staff were mad all the way through by this time and the aid-de-camp was given a typewritten message to Aguinaldo, with instructions to see that it was placed in the hands of the insurgent so characteristic of our race. leader. Siren Steam Whistle.

The tug Cambria, which plies the Savannah river, has a "siren" steam whistle which formerly belonged to the Spanish cruiser Oquendo, and made the president's party on its southern trip miserable for several minutes with its shrieks. The tug was at Santiago during the war, employed by the wrecking company in its attempts to recover the Spanish ships, and brought home this relic. - Chicago Record.

Sergeant Palmer's Offer to Capture His Excellency.

BEASON OF HAWKINS' REFUSAL

The Recklessness and Boldness of the Attempt Would Have Insured Its Success. Aguinaldo's Head Was Fearfully Swollen at the Time--Not Reduced Much as Yet,

Where is Aguinaldo? What schemes are now being concocted by him? Is he friendly or otherwise to the Ameri-

These are pertinent questions at the present time, and are of decided interest to the friends and relatives of the boys who are now doing duty at Manila.

I well remember an incident which occurred shortly after we reached Manila, while we were yet on board the Zealandia, out in the waters of the bay. General Anderson was then in supreme command of the land forces, General Merritt not having arrived. All the Generals and Colonels had been ordered to assemble on board the China, the flagship, and the result was that it was determined to land and form encampments. General Anderson sent his aidde-camp to General Aguinaldo's home. about seven miles below Manıla, asking for the loan of drays and water buffalo, for the purpose of hauling the heavy baggage to camp, after our landing on the beach. The aid-de-camp was met by Aguinaldo's aid-de-camp, the latter, a Massachusetts adventurer, making answer, in a supercilious and indifferent

"His Excellency is busy and cannot be disturbed."

No account was taken of the objections made to such treatment by the indignant American aid-de-camp, and the latter finally returned to the China and made report to General Anderson of his reception and refusal. Anderson and his staff were mad all the way through by this time and the aid-de-camp was given a typewritten message to Aguinaldo, with instructions to see that it was placed in the hands of the insurgent leader. Anderson's messenger was again met by the Massachusetts adventurer, and the fellow now made cool

"His Excellency is now sleeping and cannot be disturbed."

Only this and nothing more, and the aid-de-camp representing the United States was ignominiously turned down. Colonel A. L. Hawkins was mad, from center to circumference, as he related the incident after coming on board the Zealandia, and he said, in winding up the yarn, pointing to Aguinaldo's head-

"And there's the son-of-a-gun who needs to be killed. The fellow will vet lose his head."

The writer thought over the Colonel's remarks and finally went to the latter's stateroom and asked for a hearing. which was at once accorded, and the following proposition was made:

"Colonel, if you will let me pick 48 men from the rank and file of the regiment, accompanied by two sergeants, with myself in command, each man to be armed with rifle and revolver; and further have the Callaoa, with her rapid fire guns to back us up, and land my command from a launch on the beach one-half mile below Aguinaldo's residence, at a stated hour tonight, I'll agree to bring Aguinaldo and his aid-decamp on board the Zealandia, dead or

I assured him that I was very much in earnest, when he commended the project very warmly and said that its very audacity would make it a success. but crushed the matter in the bud by

"But, sergeant, you have forgotten one very important feature. I would love to have the power to grant your request, and would dearly love to have a hand in reducing the swelling of Mr. Againaldo's cranium; but it can't be done at the present time as he is our ally and coworker, and supposed to be working in harmony with Dewey and Merritt for the downfall and capture of the Spanish forces. Better luck in your next venture. Good night, sergeant."

And thus did my hopes of glory and renown go glimmering for the nonce.

THE SASSAFRAS PLANT.

From It May Be Brewed a Pleasant Tea and a Good Mucilage.

A correspondent of the Charleston News and Courier says of the sassafras plant: "The whole plant is valuable for its medicinal properties. The root makes an excellent tea, spicy and fragrant, and has alterative virtues quite as good as the sarsaparilla. The stalks have an inner pith that, although tedious to extract much of it, when scraped out and put into cold water and agitated for a few moments with a spoon forms a most thick and tenacious mucilage, retaining a delicate flavor of the smell of the sassafras and is a bland and soothing drink in fevers, when the mouth is dry and great thirst exists. It is frequently retained gratefully when plain water is ejected.

It is astonishing how mucilaginous a small quantity of this pith makes a tumbler of water, which becomes thick, as gum arabic water. A mere teaspoonful of the pith taken out of the small green branches of the bush will make three or four tumblerfuls of thick mu-

For inflamed eyes this mucilaginous water is very soothing and curative and has long been used for all forms of inflammation of delicate tissues, but is so simple that it is ignored by the profes-

The oil of sassafras, which is made from the root as well as other parts of the plant, makes a splendid liniment for pains and aches in combination with turpentine in proportion of one-third of the former to two-thirds of the latter. Other stimulating tinctures, such as spirits of ammonia, are sometimes added, but the chief ingredient of the lightning liniments hawked about by itinerant quacks are composed principally of sassafras oil, which is really pungent and effective.

THE PRICE OF PEPPER.

It Helped to Change the History of the Old World.

In the sixteenth century all the pepper consumed in England was bought by the English merchants from the Dutch, who brought it from India. Owing to racial jealousy, the Dutch traders in 1599 raised the cost from 3 shillings to 6 shillings per pound. This petty display of ill feeling caused considerable annoyance to the English merchants and aroused in them that feeling of independence which has always been so characteristic of our race.

They determined to import their pepper direct from India in their own ships, and for this purpose formed a company, called the Governor and Company of Merchants of London Trading to the East Indies, and which in latter days became eventually known as the East India company.

Their first voyages embroiled them in almost innumerable quarrels with the Dutch and Portuguese, and for a time the venture proved a financial failure. It was not until 1615 that the company became successful and obtained lucrative treaties, owing to their decisively defeating the Portuguese.

From this time on their possessions gradually increased, slowly at first, and then very rapidly, until, by the wise and beneficial management of such men as Clive, Warren Hastings and Cornwallis, they exercised sovereignty over the greater portion of India.

In this manner it happened that an increase in the price of pepper momentously affected the history of mankind. -London Standard.

A Shining Mark.

A lady, grievously tormented with a corn on her toe, was advised by one of her friends to anoint it with phosphorus, which in a weak moment she did, but forgot to tell her husband before retiring at night. It had just turned 12 when the husband awoke, and was startled to see something sparkling at the foot of the bed.

He had never heard of a firefly in the locality, nor did he ever remember seeing such a terrible looking object as the toe presented. Reaching carefully out of bed till he found one of his slippers he raised it high in the air and brought it down with great force upon the mysterious light.

A shriek and an avalanche of bedclothes, and all was over. When at last he released himself from the bedclothes, he discovered his wife groaning in a corner of the bedroom, but she had not got that phosphorated corn.-London Answers.

Weather Forecasts.

The first attempt at scientific forecasting of the weather was the result of a storm which during the Crimean war, Nov. 14, 1854, almost destroyed the fleets of France and England. As a France Vaillant, the French minister of war, directed that investigations be made to see if the two storms were the same and if the progress of the disturbances could have been foretold. It was demonstrated that the two were in reality one storm and that its path could have been ascertained and the fleet forewarned in ample time to reach safety.

BELMONT'S NEW PAPER

First Issue Attacks Vanderbilt and Other Rich Men.

IT ADVOCATES AN INCOME TAX

O. H. P. Belmont of the Banking Firm Is Its Founder-The New Publica tion Declares Its Opposition to Trusts and Corporations and It Policy on Democratic Politics.

Oliver H. P. Belmont has started : caper called The Verdict in New York he first number of which appeared or Dec. 19. It is a weekly illustrated sheet the illustrations consisting of colored cartoons after the style of Puck and Judge, and the paper resembles thos papers as to size. Judged by the firs issue, The Verdict will not be a humor ous paper aside from the illustrations It aims to deal seriously with men and affairs. The men it deals with editori ally and pictorially in the first issue are handled without gloves. It is par ticularly severe on the Whitneys, the Vanderbilts, on J. Pierpont Morgan and Chauncey M. Depew. The principal cartoon represents Cornelius Vanderville grinding a street organ, with J. Pier pont Morgan standing beside the instru ment, a tambourine in one hand and the string attached to a monkey in the oth er. The monkey, with the face of Chauncey M. Depew, stands before a window in which is Thomas C. Platt. about to place a penny labeled "Sena torship" in the animal's hat. A reporter was told by a person connected with the paper that this cartoon was drawn after Mr. Belmont's own suggestions.

Mr. Belmont is a member of the banking firm of August Belmont & Co. In the salutatory of his new paper occurs the following declaration of its policy:

"In politics The Verdict will stand for the principles of Democracy as it understands them and for truth as the latter finds display. It will before an election care more for a man than a measure. It will read your list of candidates twice before it reads your platform once. The Verdict will be a Democrat. But no one need construe that to mean that it will support a bad man for place. Virtue and villainy have wide, impartial distribution. No party in its personnel has a monopoly of either. There are honest Republicans just as there are others who deserve the stocks. There are upright Democrats just as there are others who should be in jail. The Sing Sing sort of Democrat will not have The Verdict's countenance, though he be named by a dozen conventions and plant himself for a platform on the Ten Commandments.

"This paper is against free silver 16 to 1-put a pin there-against free silver at any ratio. It is not for Bryan in pay for the goods ordered. Thus: 1900. It will do all that truth and honor may to prevent the selection of either the man or the issue in the next national convention. But there are worse things than free silver 16 to 1, and worse men than Bryan-who is himself worthy enough and comes only to be a tive if not exactly grammatical.menace as the exponent of free silverand The Verdict is free to say, as it stands on the threshold of an existence which shall at the worst be an honest one, that should Bryan and free silver subjected in some way to the dominion again find Democratic adoption it will of man and be domesticated to some ex-

These would either have to confess their true income or pay a tax on their mendacity, and one may readily conceive that most of the 'inquisitorial' wail over the proposal of an income tax comes from this pinch-beck class. "Those trade deadfalls and dellar traps, the trusts, The Verdict believes. should be smashed. They make the rich storm had raged several days earlier in richer and the poor poorer. The locusts of Egypt were a mouthless brood to them. The Verdict is in earnest favor of cutting the claws of corporations. It does not agree in abject public surrender to such outfits as, for example, the Metropolitan railroad, which recently, without leave obtained or license given, coolly made an endless pitfall of entire Broadway And while we are on the subject, let it be said that The Verdict is in favor of New York owning its own street franchises and does not indorse a surrender of its thoroughfares, rentless and priceless, to become mere hunting grounds of money for monopo-

With regard to Mr. Depew as a senaorial candidate, The Verdict refers to im as a tool of the Vanderbilts, and dds: "As becomes wealth that is wide wake and aware of itself, the Vanderiltian treasure enlisted an army of notmen, butlers and valets. Among its ront rank door slammers was and is Depew. "-New York Sun.

Equal to Occasions.

Lord Whitworth, who held various costs of honor in English diplomatic ircles, was a kindly, gracious gentleman as well as a wit and a man of the world. He had indeed almost measured words with Napoleon at the Tuileries when that despot railed at England for not having evacuated Egypt and Malta, ccused her of having violated treaties and ended by flourishing a cane dangerously near the face of the English embassador.

Lord Whitworth put his hand on the hilt of his sword.

"What would you have done if the emperor had struck you?" he was afterward asked.

"I would have felled him to the ground," was the quiet answer.

Perhaps the best story told of him is one showing how his quick wit disposed of a rival. When he was at the Russian court, Fox sent there as a sort of embassador of his own a man named Adair, the son of a surgeon.

One day the empress, speaking in French, said to Lord Whitworth:

"Is he a very important man, this M. Adair?"

"Not so very, madame," replied Lord Whitworth, "although his father was a grand saigneur," a remark which readers of French will recognize as a very good pun, for the word as used by Lord Whitworth means "blood letter," while by its sound it also meant a great lord. -Youth's Companion.

Capt. Quay Quoted Regarding His Father's Prospects.

THE CASE COMING UP SATURDAY.

Supreme Court May Give Decision or Hear Argument or Appoint a Day For Argument-Attorney Graham Asked to Continue In the Case.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—United States Senator Quay returned to this city from Harrisburg to confer with his counsel in reference to criminal charges brought against him in connection with the wrecked People's bank, and went to Washington, after receiving many calls from personal friends. When the case comes up the commonwealth will still be represented by ex-District Attorney Graham, his recently elected successor, P. F. Rothermel, having asked him to continue in the case. Saturday next has been fixed for the return of the rule issued to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not issue to the court of quarter sessions in the cases. It is not definitely certain that the supreme court will hear argument on that day on the rule. It may be possible, however, that it may fix a day for argument at that time.

It is not unusual in important cases | fellow citizens. for the court, on the return day of the proceeding, to ascertain from counsel how long argument will take, and then set aside a time for the taking up of the case. Frequently the court declines to hear argument and will give a decision upon the proceedings as they appear upon the record.

What turn the Quay case will take on Saturday next can only be conjectured, but it is thought the court will not hear an extended argament at that

Regarding the intention of Mr. Graham, as special assistant, in presenting the case, it was understood that if the supreme court sent them back to the quarter sessions court of this county Mr. Graham would surely have charge of them for the district attorney.

Neither Mr. Graham nor District Attorney Rothermel would make any positive statement in regard to their course in the future conduct of the cases.

Senator Quay was accompanied by his two sons, R. R. Quay and Captain Kirk Quay. The senator went at once to the Stratford hotel. He conferred for several hours with his attorneys.

He declined absolutely to discuss

On the train that brought Senator Quay to the city came a number of those who have been active participants in the caucus fight at Harrisburg. Senator Penrose, ex-State Senator Durham, Real Estate Assessor J. W. Durham, Senator Andrews, Collector McClain, Magistrate South, Rudolph Blankenburg and others were among the number. Ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker returned to this city. At the Stratford there was a long stream of callers. Most of them were friendly to the senator and from them it was gathered that when the day for the election of the senator arrives there will be a surprise sprung on the opposition. They assert that the caucus was a part of the general program and that no importance can a attached to the fact that only 100 ke publicans attended the session. The surprise, they say, will be in the form of votes, and that crimes in Alaska and provide a code of arrangements have already been made by which the senator will be given all the votes needed to secure his election. the bill was made a continuing order In this connection one of the satellites until disposed of, not, however, to inquoted Captain Quay as having said: terfere with appropriation bills or other "It is all fixed."

ANTI-OUAY ADDRESS.

A Committee Representing the Organization Issued One-Flinn Chairman of the Meeting.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 5.-The Republican senators and members who signed the pledge not to take part in the senatorial caucus organized to keep up the fight against Senator Quay until after Martin A. Ryerson, president of the the supreme court has disposed of the board of trustees, donated a tract of People's bank conspiracy cases. The land. The value of this is $34,000. meeting was attended by nearly all the signers and two others who did not sign, but kept away from the caucus.

General William H. Koontz of Somerset called the meeting to order and nominated Senator William Flinn of Allegheny for chairman, and Senator J. Representative Robert K. Young of therefore, received $169,000 in land Tioga for secretaries. Senator Flinn value and will now receive from Mr. said there had been no necessity for holding a senatorial caucus, and that so long as those who stayed away stood together there could be no election of a United States senator. He further said in part that what he wanted was more light on the charges pending against Senator Quay to ascertain whether he is a proper person to be elected to the United States senate.

Senator elect David Martin of Philadelphia, who will be qualified Jan. 17, when the house and senate will vote for senator, concurred in what Senator Flinn said.

Senators Flinn and Weller of Bedford and Rapresentatives Coray of Lazerne. ville.

Savage of Philadelphia, Moore of Bus ler and Young were appointed a com-mittee to take charge of the work of the organization.

The committee later issued the following address:

To the Republicans of Pennsylvania:

We, the undersigned committee appointed by, and representing the absentees of the alleged Republican caucus, desiring that our fellow Republicans throughout the state should understand clearly the motives which animate us in our present position with reference to the United States senatorship here by briefly set forth our reasons:

In our present attitude we are prompted by what we believe to be the best interest of our party and state. We believe that a Republican senator should and will be elected and that no combination of circumstances can prevent it. We believe that the unquestioned sentiment of the Republicans of the commonwealth is against taking action that might result in the election of a person as United States senator who is charged with crime before his innocence is established in a court of justice, and that the failure to demand that question prior to this time is due to the act of the alleged caucus nominee in delaying trial and not to any act of ours. We feel that in justice to the public and our own sense of self respect and luty we are justified in refusing to be committed to any proposition that might cast a tigma upon our commonwealth and our own ntegrity as citizens and legislators.

Feeling that we are sustained in our position by the unbiased sentiment of the state, we leem it unwise to vote for any person for Inited States senator who is duly charged vith crime so long as those charges remain indetermined. We cannot justify ourselves or voting for any person for office who is inicted for criminal offenses and who simply lleges that he is the victim of a political conpiracy. We believe that the public as well s ourselves is not interested in the motives of he person making the charges, but rather in he truth or the falsity of these charges.

Entertaining these views we submit our action to the unprejudiced judgment of our

Referred to a Senate Committee-Chaplain Referred to Morrill's Death In His Prayer.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The first session of the senate after the holiday recess occupied only about 14 minutes, although in that brief time two open sessions and an executive session were

The senatorial members of the peace commission appeared on the floor and were given a hearty greeting by their colleagues.

The chaplain in his invocation said: "We come together under a sense of bereavement by the absence of the senior senator of Vermont, whose wise counsel and loving presence shall no more enrich the proceedings in this chamber. We bless thee, O' Lord! for his noble life, for his example to all men, and we pray that his spirit may ever abide within these walls.

In the absence of the vice president, Mr. Frye (Me.), the president pro tem., called the senate to order.

Later a message from the president of the United States was presented. It contained the treaty of Paris.

On motion of Mr. Davis, the senate then went into executive session, in order that the treaty might be referred to the committee on foreign relations.

In a few minutes the senate reconvened in open session, and Mr. Allison announced the death of Senator Morrill. The usual resolutions were adopted and as a mark of respect the serfate adjourned until today.

BANISHMENT DECLARED USELESS.

M. Salomon Concluded That It Produced Moral Degradation of Exiles-Dismissed Some Officials For Cruelty and Embezzlement-Reforms to Be Inaugurated.

London, Jan. 5.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"Privy Councillor Salomon of the prisons' administration has just returned here from a five months' tour of the prisons and exile colonies of the Russian government in Siberia and the island of Saghalien, off the south coast of Asia. He has furnished me with the chief points of his personal report to the

"Its leading feature is M. Salomon's conclusion that banishment is useless and undesirable as a punishment because it produces the complete moral degradation of the exile.

"Salomon found the prisons in Western Siberia in fair condition with no signs of overcrowding or dirt, but in Eastern Siberia the conditions were quite the opposite. Matters he found still worse in Saghalien—prisoners badly treated, prisons filthy and hospitals crowded like pig sties. He dismissed two chief directors of prisons for cruelty and embezzlement and 80 minor officials for cruelty.

"He has drafted a comprehensive system of reforms in prison treatment, greatly ameliorating existing conditions, providing payment for penal work and facilities for settling in Siberia on the expiration of sentences. He believed his suggested reforms would be speedily inaugurated."

SCRAPED OFF THE GREEN.

Then the Beef Was Good, Said a Major. The Hoof Killed Beef Was Not Healthy.

Washington, Jan. 5 .- Major Harrison, Ninth volunteer infantry, whose regiment was raised near New Orleans and is now in service at Santiago, was one of the witnesses before the war investigating commission.

Concerning commissary stores, he said those in the United States were the best that could be bought in the open market. The refrigerated beef sent from this country, he said, was excellent. He had had much experience with refrigerated meat, and he said that while there was some disposition on the part of the regimental cooks to cavil at the appearance of the meat, it was in reality quite good. He explained that the sudden change of temperature on removing the meat from the refrigerator ships produced what is known as a 'beard," a greenish growth that had to be scraped off.

When this was done, the meat beneath was perfectly good. It was served to the men with excellent results and benefited the sick materially. The chief trouble came when the change was made to hoof cattle sent from Porto Rico. This beef Major Harrison killed himself and personally superintended its dressing and cooling. He further said in part: "But it would not cool in that climate. The meat never lost its animal heat and with its use our sickness increased 10 per cent."
Of the canned meat, Major Harrison spoke with equal emphasis, saying that it was fully as good as the refrigerator beef, was well received by the men and none of it had to be condemned.

Governor Beaver asked if a refrigerating plant were estalished there whether Cuban beef could be killed on the ground and rendered fit for use by the men. Witness said he thought this would not be desirable, as the Cuban cattle, while fine looking, furnished the coarsest and most stringy beef he had ever seen.

Witness said he was thoroughly familiar with the processes of refrigerating and butchering meat and he was willing to state positively that there were no chemicals used in any of the American beef that passed under his observation.

Recurring to the hoof killed beef at Santiago, witness said the surgeons in charge attributed the 10 per cent increase in intestinal sickness to the use of the fresh killed beef. There was a proportionate decrease in sickness when the regiment returned to the refrigerated beef.

COST UNDER THE HULL BILL.

Letters Showing the Expense of Proposed Military Establishment.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The cost of the proposed military establishment under the Hull bill, reported to the house, as compared with the present regular military establishment, not counting the volunteer force incident to the war, was shown in letters sent by Adjutant General Corbin to Chairman Hull of the military committee. It gives the present cost of the regular army at $24,343,434; cost under the proposed bill, $82,053,865; increase of cost, $57,710,231.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Representa-tive Lewis of Washington introduced a resolution providing for an inquiry by any house committee appointed to investigate the conduct of the war into the beef contracts made by the government.

THE LATE CALVIN BRICE'S WEALTH It Is Probable That It Amounted to

About $7,000,000. New York, Jan. 5 .- Although the value of the late Calvin S. Brice's personal property in New York was fixed at only $600,000 in the petition for letters of administration on file at the surrogate's office, it is probably that his whole estate when formally taken into account will amount to about $7,000,000. It was said at the surrogate's office that the great bulk of Mr. Brice's property was not within the jurisdiction of this county or state.

Denied the Charges Filed by Monnett.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR DELAY.

The Motion to Oust Expected to Come Up Today In the State Supreme Court. Attorney Kline Went to Columbus For the Standard Oil Company.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 5 .- The taking of testimony in the Standard Oil case was not resumed before Master Commissioner Brinsmade, due to the fact that the state attorney general had filed a motion before the Ohio supreme court to oust Brinsmade from his position as master commissioner. This motion was set for hearing before the supreme court today. Mr. Brinsmade received the following telegram from Attorney General Monnett: "Can't resume the case Thursday. Havn't any money to pay expenses.

Not only will Commissioner Brinsmade file an answer to Monnett's ouster action, but the Standard Oil company will do so as well, so Mr. Brinsmade said. Attorney Virgil P. Kline, representing the Standard Oil company, went to Columbus to personally file the company's answer with the supreme court.

The commissioner completed his answer to the attorney general's motion to oust him. In brief it set forth the following:

"First-It is not true the attorney general was refused the books of the liquidating trustees in New York. On the contrary the books were produced for the inspection of Mr. Kincaid, the attorney general's associate counsel, and myself; copies were taken therefrom and are attached to the testimony now on file with the clerk of the supreme court.

"Second-As to having no further means of continuing the case I refer the court to session laws, Vol. 89, page 407, in regard to the powers of the emergency board, which has full power to appropriate any deficiency in any department. "Third-The commissioner was appointed June 24, 1898. The attorney general notified the commissioner he would not be ready until September to take up the case. By an agreement between Monnett and Kline, with which I had nothing to do, the case was finally set for Oct. 10. "Fourth-The second order of the court, requiring Squire to produce the books, was made Dec. 6, and the commissioner was requested to proceed with all convenient speed to examine the books under the direction of the attorney general. The attorney general made no request until Dec. 20 to have the case set for Dec. 22. The master commissioner leaves it for the court to decide as to who has been responsible for the delay in the taking of testimony.

"Fifth—The attorney general in one of his reasons says: It will appear manifest to the court from the record that the referee has yielded to the applications for continuances and delays over which the state has no control. The commissioner replies the record shows no such thing, and on the contrary the facts show the attorney general himself is responsible for the delays. "Sixth-The commissioner makes this statement purely for the purpose of placing himself right before the honorable court, who saw fit to appoint him master commissioner."

JOHN W. FOSTER WORSE.

Feared Pneumonia Had Developed-Dingley Had a Sinking Spell, but Rallied Somewhat.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 .- The illness from which ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster is suffering has taken a turn for the worse and it was feared that pneumonia had developed. The patient was very restless and had a severe coughing spell which considerably weakened him.

The physicians attending Representative Dingley announced that he was resting comfortably, but they were not able to say whether there was sufficient vitality left in the patient to successfully resist the inroads of the disease. After his sinking spell he rallied somewhat and appeared stronger.

Illinois Senators Ill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.-Both the Illinois senators were prevented from attending the session of the senate, Senator Cullom on account of a fall and Senator Mason because of illness. Mr. Cullom fell on the ice in going out Monday night to mail some letters and was so badly bruised that he has since been confined to his bed.

Giving the Lucky First-Comers an Opportunity of Saving Dollars in Fine Office Stationary-We Need Shelf Room for a Splendid New Line Just Received.

Closing out sales are now occupying the attention of many of our business men. They need shelf room for spring stocks. It is a time when profits are not considered; anything to move the goods.

A printer's stock is generally staple but odds and ends will accumulate, and their room is more to be desired than the goods. We have an assortment of some fifteen or twenty thousand sheets in ruled papers, comprising odd sizes and broken lines; papers that have been special ruled for firms who have either quit business or discontinued their use. They may answer your purpose, and are, perhaps, the very thing you have been looking for. We want shelf room, and will close out all odds and ends at cost and less. The saving to you will be great, and never again will such an opportunity present itself. These goods must be seen to be appreciated. Telephone 122 will bring our solicitor to you.

By giving one firm the bulk of our trade, which amounts to more than that of all the printers in East Liverpool, we have been enabled to secure a complete line of ruled writing paper, in flats, bonds and linens, at even less price than others can buy the common grades. This stock is the product of a worldfamed Massachusetts manufacturer, and we can now give you an A1 article for the same price you will have to pay

Bishop Hartzell's Great Plans For the Dark Continent.

BRITISH CO-OPERATION PROMISED.

Centers of Civilization Proposed In Rhodesia and Southeastern Africa. Possibilities In Ancient Ophir-The Great Sway of the Fetich Man.

Many colored people as well as others are interested in the trip of Bishop Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal church to Africa. The bishop's work includes the missions of American Methodism in Africa. On his arrival in that continent he intends to develop some wide reaching plans which he has formed and put under way since his appointment to the African field in 1896. One of his centers of operation is Rhodesia, in southeastern Africa, and there he has received concessions from the British authorities to the value of about $40 .-000, with a contingent promise of assistance to the extent of dollar for dollar such money as he expends in the development of the projects looking to the civilization and Christianization of a large territory. The substantial concessions are in lands and buildings. But of greater significance than this material support is the sentiment favoring united efforts of British and Americans officially expressed on behalf of the Chartered company operating Rhodesia.

Bishop Hartzell has great confidence in the future of the colony which the genius of Cecil Rhodes has developed under the British flag, a track of country destined to be traversed by the railway and telegraph lines that will at no very distant day connect the Cape Colony with Cairo. He has consecrated himself to African work now, he said, and his conversation indicated that he is heartily with those who believe that the English and Americans together should undertake the work that civilization requires to be done in this part of Africa. He has traveled thousands of miles there and familiarized himself with the conditions of the country and

In talking with a reporter the bishop quoted these words from an official letter which he had received from Earl Grey, representing the British South African company, "England desires America to unite in the establishment of Anglo-Saxon civilization in eastern Africa, where for thousands of years there has been nothing but barbarous ills, either directly or through human but as the Fifth avenue route is comheathenism." They indicated, he said, agency. He has episcopal supervision of Liberia, Angola, a Portuguese colony on the west coast, and Rhodesia. There are many missionaries as well as schools, Sunday schools, churches and orphanages in these territories, but the bishop is giving large attention to plans for this new and great movement in Rhodesia. There civilization is blotting out the wilderness as rapidly as was the case in the great west of this country a few years ago. The same splendid push and energy characterize the advance there as here in the United States. Men of the same class are carrying on the work there. He spoke of banqueting in one place farther north than the region under consideration 18 months after the English had fought for their lives there against the barbarians. His plans include great missionary centers at Old and New Umtali, from 225 to 250 miles native boys and girls who later on will inland from Beira, on the coast. The bishop traveled on horseback a good part of that distance before the railroad was completed. New Umtali is destined to be an English town of large importance. The white population has grown | press their enthusiasm over the healthin two years to more than 1,000. "New Umtali will be the railroad center for 450 miles of road from the coast to Salisbury, half of which is already built," Bishop Hartzell said, "and will be connected with Tete on the Zambezi, 200 miles north, by telegraph and railway. The ruins of the My hope is that American friends will old mines are still there. There are quite a number of paying gold mines within a few miles of New Umtali. The agricultural possibilities of the region are also great. Here among the Eu ropeans, as the population increases and the plans are developed, will be established an institution of learning where in addition to the ordinary work of education we can have a missionary training school for the education of white teachers and missionaries, both male and female, who are willing to consecrate their lives to the redemption of

"At Old Umtali, across the pass, in a beautiful valley through which flow two mountain streams, my plan is to supplant the dingy, comfortless omnidevelop on a large scale a missionary station for the natives. The natives here are mostly Mashonas. The principal chief lives nearby. These natives are intelligent, and easily take to agricultural and other industrial pursuits. They also take readily to mechanics. At this point the government has granted me without expense plots of land and buildings in the town worth at least $30,000. It has also made a concession of land nearby where we can have gardens and an experimental farming station and has offered a large concession of land farther north in the Inyanga country, where the plateau varies from 4,000 to 6,000 feet above the sea. In that region the Right Hon. Cecil Rhodes has a great experimental farm, where he is spending large sums upon live stock and agricultural products, his purpose being to demonstrate what lines of agricultural development are possible in that climate and territory. "My plan for the organization of this central missionary station includes several departments. In the first place, I purpose to organize industrial schools in agriculture, carpentry, brickmaking and such other industries as may be made profitable and to teach the natives how to gain a livelihood and develop independent and successful communities. It is proposed to use hospital and medical work as an evangelizing agency, on the plans which are most approved in our best foreign missionary work in other countries.

"One of the great forces to be broken among the native heathen in Africa is the power of the fetich doctor. I have seen many specimens of these fiends in human shape. They represent the inherited shrewdness and cunning of centuries. They stand as the accredited controllers of evil spirits, which are supposed by the natives to inhabit the air and to be the sources of innumerable have been the cause of some evil, either to the tribe or its prosperity, or to some individual. They have some native remedies which frequently work good results, and occasionally they can do some surgery, but in the mass they are a blight and a curse upon the native multitudes. Their power is immense, and they play upon the superstition of the natives with tremendous effect. The remedy for this is the quiet, patient, consecrated Christian physician, who in the spirit and with the methods of Christ shall go about and show to the people a better way of life. "There will be schools for boys and girls and orphanages for little children, who will be trained under Christian matrons separate from barbarous, heathen associations. The church, with its services in the native language, will of course be an important and central factor. Here it is believed will be gathered in a few years a large company of young go out as leaders in industry, education and morality among the vast heathen multitudes in the region beyond. One company of missionaries is already on the ground, and letters from them exmissionaries will go in a few months, ical missionary. He is a graduate of the cago doctors in preparation for his work. The Rev. J. L. DeWitt of Ohio. Miss Alice Culver, who has recently completed a course of training in nursing at the Seney hospital in Brooklyn, will go as a trained nurse. My plan is to have in that center within a year at least a dozen picked men and women from America to take charge of and develop it on the lines indicated."

The bishop's wife was with him in eastern and southern Africa and will go with him again. She is planning orphanages for young native children. 'As these general plans and these three strategic centers have become known and discussed throughout the church Mashonaland, the principal one being and the country, friends have indicated Zimbabwe. These are objects of great a desire to render financial aid," Bishop interest to explorers and antiquarians. | Hartzell continued. "The general missionary committee of the church at its recent session in Providence gave careception of Egypt. The region where ful study to the whole movement. AUTOMOBILE VEHICLES.

Light Ones Will Soon Supplant Fifth Avenue Stages In New York.

Automobile vehicles similar to those in use in London and Paris will soon buses that now roll up and down Fifth avenue in New York. Officers of the Third Avenue Railway company recently purchased the entire capital stock of the Fifth Avenue Stage company, and the purchase indicates a change in the system of transit. At the offices of the Third Avenue Railway company I was told the other day that the officials had not yet decided upon the motive power of the automobiles, but that the routes to be covered would extend far beyond the one in Fifth avenue probably. While the storage battery system meets with favor, yet compressed air or petroleum may be used. The company may soon send a representative to Paris to inspect the automobiles there and decide upon which style of vehicle to use. Several months may pass before the change is

On account of the peculiar conditions to which any plan for street transportation in Fifth avenue is subject, only such vehicles as carry their power with them and need no special tracks may be used. So far as the avenue is concerned. the only elevation of any consequence is Murray Hill, which would not prove an obstacle to any form of motor carriage now in use in the big continental cities. Fifth avenue is now almost wholly paved with asphalt, laid at different times and by different contractors. As a result, heavy motor carriages might ruin parts of the avenue in a short time. To avoid such contingencies the company is determined to choose only the lightest form of automobile. The Fifth avenue line must compete closely with the trolley service in Madison and Sixth avenues, and hence the question of cheapness plays an important part in the problems that confront the Fifth avenue company. It is said that no automobile system can ever compete successfully with the trolley. lines the company thinks the automobiles may prove a paying investment.

Edward Lauterbach said recently that it was too soon to say whether the company would introduce electricity, compressed air or petroleum, but it was likely that electricity would be used He thought that when the public saw the advantages of a modern electrical coach service which moved about with the speed of the underground trolleys it would not be slow to patronize it and demand a greatly enlarged system of routes through many of the important districts. - Cor. YALE'S NEW COMET.

It Is 180,000,000 Miles From Us and 200,000,000 From the Sun.

Fred L. Chase, assistant astronomer at the Yale observatory, who discovered the recent comet, has recently made several additional discoveries relative to the comet, says the New York Sun. Since Dec. 7, numerous observations have been taken, the comet being well observed at the Yale observatory with the 8 inch equatorial on the nights of Dec. 13, 14 and 15, which were unusually clear. The comet passed perihelion on about the middle of September at a distance of over 200,000,000 miles from the sun. Its orbit is a parabola, and the comet is now gradually receding from the sun, though the earth is moving toward the comet, so that its brightness is still increasing. They are now about 180,000, 000 miles apart. After a few weeks the earth will draw farther away from the story that comes all the way from Quecomet, and the latter will rapidly lose its brilliance. The comet ought, how- my Atkins one day while in that provever, to be visible with large telescopes ince, and they had as companion and for two or three months at least.

Disease is a great and treacherous ocean. Man ever stands upon its shore and gazes out over its calm surface without a thought of danger. It licks his feet-it advances and recedes almost playfully—but all the same it will crack his bones and eat him, and wipe the crimson foam from its jaws as if nothing had happend, as it has been doing ever since the world began.

A man who carelessly saunters along the shore of the insatiate sea of disease, will some day encounter a great storm in the form of some fatal malady and will be engulfed. Because a man does not have to go to bed when he suffers from a trivial indigestion, because he does not have to give up work when he gets nervous and cannot sleep at night, because he can still force down an unsatisfactory meal when he is suffering from loss of appetite, because by strong effort he can add a column of figures with aching head—is no reason that these disorders are trifling or to be neglected. They are the warnings of serious sickness. A man who promptly heeds them, and resorts to the right remedy, will speedily recover his usual health. The man who neglects them will find that he is in the grip of consumption, some nervous disorder, or some other dread malady, due to improper or insufficient nutrition. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best of all medicines for men and women who suffer in this way. It restores the lost appetite, facilitates the flow of digestive juices, invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood and tones and builds up the nerves. It cures 98 per cent. of all chronic, bronchial, throat and lung affections, and is an unfailing remedy for nervous prostration. Medicine dealers sell it.

After he had finished Lawrence Allison was elected financial secretary to fill an unexpired term.

WILL NOT RESIGN.

Colonel Hard Is Ready to Fight For His Position.

That Colonel Hard does not intend to resign his command of the Eighth Ohio is shown by a press dispatch sent out from Akron. It is as follows.

"Colonel Curtis V. Hard, of the Eighth Ohio regiment, was in Akron today on his way home to Wooster from Washington and consented to talk on the demand of his resignation when the National Guard should reorganize. He declared emphatically that he would not resign and said that if the men who had started the fight on him desired to keep it up he would be ready for them and that he would make their 'teeth rattle.'

"He charged that these men were in the scheme simply to secure their own military advancement. Colonel Hard will call a meeting next week of the relatives of the men of the Eighth who are buried in Cuba to let them choose the officer who shall accompany the expedition to Cuba.

She does not take these midwinter baths for the sake of notoriety, for Edgewater is a very quiet place.

"I think there is nothing better in the world than a swim in the cold water," said Miss Peters the other evenabout a swim in cold water that one doesn't experience during the warm weather. I have always enjoyed swimming in cold water. I first tried it in the Elbe river, in Germany, where the weather is pretty cold at times.

"I think winter swimming is healthful. Once under the water you don't feel as cold as you would standing on Engineer John A. Salvation Army's Novel Device.

The newest and most novel device for collecting money has been put forth by the Salvation Army in New York, and it has met with remarkable success, because it has struck the popular fancy. BY THE PEOPLE.

The endeavor of a number of state legislatures to elect representatives to the United States senate has again brought on a discussion of the advantages to be derived by a change in the system now in vogue.

For many years the plan in use has been attended by scandal. Few men have been elevated to the highest branch in the legislative department of the government without carrying with them | years at least, and that he is not guilty the charge of bribery. In some instances it has been openly made, while in he is charged. others it has been implied. Desperate political battles have been fought, and party organizations have been disrupted. The effect upon the people has at no time been good, tending to produce the belief that every seat in the senate is for sale and the man who is willing to bid highest is entitled to a place among other men who have passed through the same operation.

There should be a change. The people should be given the privilege of selecting their representatives in the senate. The will of the majority would rule, and there would be no scandal. Members of state legislatures would not dispose of their votes, and they would carry out the wishes of their constituents. A more wholesome atmosphere would surround politics, and it is not at all unlikely that better men would find places in the senate.

The organization is in splendid working condition and stands ready to give material aid to the parent body in case of necessity. The ladies comprising the membership are earnest and indefatigable workers. Under the hand of the Master, they have accomplished much for the Young Men's Christian association of East Liverpool. Their efforts have always met with success, and they have been ably backed by a generous, great hearted public. The books are open for new members, mothers, wives and sisters of the men of East Liverpool. The object is for the saving of young men; and to this end, every effort should be made to make the rooms of the Young Men's Christian association so attractive as to cause our young men to assemble there, for exercise, innocent amusement and reading privileges, and thus avoid the pernicious and damaging sumed. influence of the American saloon. LONG HUNT FOR THE CAUSE

Then the Power Came on as Though Nothing Had Happened, and Travel Was Resumed--Superintendent Andrews Gives an Opinion.

For two hours the line of the East Liverpool street railway was tied up this morning. Not a car moved between the powerhouse in this city and the turntable in Wellsville.

The cause of the trouble could not be tound. It was just 6:40 o'clock and almost all the cars out were on switches when the power suddenly left the line. Motormen could do nothing but wait, and a long wait it proved to be. Fortun- National Bank ately some cars had made round trips and many persons who live in Wellsville and work in this city had come to town, but there was nevertheless much incon-

Superintendent Andrews and a force at once went over the line in search of the trouble, but they found nothing although the superintendent had reached Lythe's when the power came on. That happened a few minutes before 9 o'clock, and traffic was instantly re- B. C. SIMMS.

Money Making in Japan.

The contempt for money and trade, characteristic of Japan, has lost much of its force. Merchants have risen in social standing and have even been advanced to the peerage. Indeed Mr. Fukuzawa, the most influential educator in the empire, declares that it is every man's first duty to make money in order to increase the power of the nation. Newspapers abound in commercial statistics, and magazines are largely devoted to industrial topics. It is a significant fact that a wealthy merchant, Mr Okura, recently gave $500,000 for the establishment of a commercial college. He had intended to found a school for the children of the poor, but was dissuaded by Marquis Ito. This was the more noteworthy in that it was the first gift for public purposes made by a private individual in Japan.

The Bones Found on the Hill at Fredericktown

ARE THE REMAINS OF MACKALL

His Father and Brother Are of That Opinjop, and Mr. Overlander, of Palestine, Is Pesitive-The Benes Were Taken to Fredericktown and Later Passed Into the Possession of Amsi Mackall--Wife of the Unfortunate Man Will Allow His Family to Look After the Burial.

There is now no doubt that the skeleton found Tuesday near Fredericktown is all that remains of the late Adam Richardson Mackall.

A representative of the News Re-VIEW, in company with J. M. Smith, father in law of the deceased, yesterday drove to Fredericktown and found the usually quiet country village in a state of excitement and the only topic of conversation the ghastly find.

The skeleton was discovered Tuesday afternoon by Charles Black, who was tracing coons. It was only by the slightest chance that he came across the remains. He was walking along the edge of what is know as Little Pine run, and had reached a point where the bank was so covered by ice that it was impossible for him to go farther, and he started up the hill and had gone but a short distance when he found the skull, and going a short distance farther the remainder of the bones were found. He did not pick them up and they were left where he found them, while he went back to Fredericktown and notified the people of the find. It was at once suspected that the bones were those of A. R. Mackall, and early yesterday morning Doctor Fitzsimmons drove to the home of James Mackall, father of the deceased, who lives about three miles from Fredericktown, and notified him of the finding of the bones. Amsi Mackall, a brother of the deceased, who lives but a short distance from his father's farm, was also notified and returned with Doctor Fitzsimmons. In company with about 35 or 40 men and boys, and guided by Charles Black, the party made their way to the place where the skeleton was lying. If the deceased had hunted for a long time he could not have selected a better spot to have ended his life. The place is surrounded by pine trees and is so secluded that it would be impossible to see any person unless a special visit was made. Surrounded by the trees was a rock probably eight or ten feet across at the rear and which tapered down to a point, at the end of which is a precipice of probably seven or eight feet. Close to the edge of the rock is a small spruce tree. The deceased had climbed the tree and fastened a check line around the first limb and then made a slip noose, and then taken the other end of the line and wrapped it around the limb so that there would be no danger of him failing in his attempt. He had then evidently taken the apron and skirt which he had with him and placed them inside the noose to keep the strap from cutting his neck and then swung off the end of the rock to his death. The skirt noose when the body was found. A careful search of the place revealed the fact that a fire had been built near the rock as though the deceased might have remained there for several days before committing his rash act. One person in the party recalled the fact that one night while walking along the creek he had noticed a light near the place where the skeleton was found, but paid no attention to it as he supposed it was caused by a party of coon hunters.

The bones were picked up and carefully placed in a hunting jacket, the skull being found about eight feet from the balance of the bones, it having rolled down the hill. The line was taken from the tree, and the coat and shoes which the deceased wore were also taken, and the party returned to Fredericktown. There the bones were placed in a small grocery box and nailed up and taken to the home of Amsi Mackall.

The party from here drove to the home of James Mackall and his first Words were "Well we have found Ad." He told the circumstances and seemed very much worried, and asked that Mrs. Mackall be notified. The party then went to the home of Amsi Mackall where they viewed the clothes that had been found and the bones. Mr. L. D. Overlander, of East Palestine, at whose home Mr. Mackall was staying when he disappeared, identified the check line as the one that had been taken from his stable, while his wife was able to identify the skirt and apron as belonging to her. The coat was taken, and

although it was in a very delapidated condition, yet it matched the trousers which had been left at the home of Mr. Overlander when Mr. Mackall disappeared. There was no doubt in his mind that the skeleton was all that remained of the late A. R. Mackall, and Amsi Mackall was of the same opinion. They did not seem surprised at the find. Mr. Overlander stated that he had hunted two days for the missing man after the return of the horse, and had found the bridle at the end of the old stone bridge near Fredericktown and had then given up the

What to do with the remains was discussed, and it was finally decided that J. M. Smith should notify his daughte: Mrs. Mackall, at her home in Wooster, to see where she wished to have them sent, as she had always expressed a wish that he be buried in Wooster if anything should happen.

Coroner Straughn was notified last I tended to at her home. night and instructed Mr. Overlander to secure a justice of the peace to hold the inquest, and it will take place as soon looked upon as worthy people. as possible.

Mr. Smith this afternoon succeeded in notifying Mrs. Mackall, and she stated that his relatives could dispose of the remains as they saw fit, and that Mr. Mackall had always expressed a desire to be buried at Mt. Zion.

Women and Portraits.

"It is a curious fact, " said an experienced Net. Orleans photographer, "that it isn't the handsomest women who make the handsomest pictures. Why is it? Well, a beauty nearly always owes her charm to something beyond the reach of the lens-to her complexion, her hair or the vivacity of her expression. Very few such women have regular features, and when they are reproduced in plain black and white they are at a great disadvantage. Their photographs are generally unsatisfactory and are really not correct as likenesses. On the other hand, a woman who is regarded as homely may have singularly perfect lines, but attracts no attention through lack of color and animation.

"I'll cite, you a queer instance: A dozen or so years ago Maude Branscombe was the most popular model in the United States for photographic 'art studios.' Her best pose was as a nun and her pictured face was strikingly beautiful. Thousands upon thousands of people have raved over her loveliness, but the real Miss Branscombe, whom I had the pleasure of knowing, was a demure, pale little woman who would never in the world attract the slightest attention in a crowd. Without a doubt she was passed unnoticed by many a person who treasured her portrait as a marvel."-New Orleans Times-Demo-

The Trading Rat.

Of all curious animals which man has come across and studied probably none can compare with a kind of rat found in the Rocky mountains. Though for a long time well known to trappers and lumbermen, it is only lately that any naturalist has studied these peculiar little beasts.

Although called a rat this little animal is larger than an ordinary rat, with a body eight inches long. It is a very pretty creature, with soft gray fur and a squirrellike tail, easily tamed and a delightful pet. The trappers long ago gave it the name of the "trading rat," from its curious habit of never stealing anything without putting something in its place.

Two young women camping in the highlands of Wyoming left the lid of their cracker box off one night. In the morning all the biscuits were gone and the box was filled with an indescribable mixture of chips, scraps of leather, sticks, bones, dried beans-in fact, everything movable near at hand.

The trading rat builds a very beautiful nest, sometimes two feet in height, and is very clever at storing food. It has a violent fancy for anything of a bright red hue. - Philadelphia Inquirer.

His Signature.

An elderly man stepped into a big hotel the other day, accompanied by his wife, and asked for a room. When the polite clerk gave him a pen and placed the register before him, he looked visi bly embarrassed, but he took the pen and bent over the book as though he had nerved himself to some desperate

He started to write and then stopped and began to think. The clerk, of course, didn't know what the trouble was or else he would have volunteered his services. After a painful pause the ruralist started in to scratching some

After the expiration of fully five minutes the farmer threw down his pen with a sigh of relief, wiped the perspiration from his brow and rejoined his better half, who had been waiting in the lobby during the ordeal. The clerk was curious to see a signature that required such an unusual length of time to execute. The clerk is a solemn man, but he nearly went off into a fit when he saw, in big, round script, this legend:

Society as a Reformer.

"Swearing is growing less, decidedly so," writes Edward Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal. "All students of men agree in this view, just as excessive alcoholic drinking is falling into disuse. The principal reason for the decline of both excessive swearing and drinking is that men are getting more and more careful to refrain from any babit which places their self control in peril. Society is constantly growing more impatient with a man who lacks equipoise, while the keener demands of business necessitates men being more moderate in all things. The basis of the change may be more material than spiritual, but the change is taking place irrespective of the character of the basis or motive."

ONE TAKEN TO CITY

Where He Was Given an Opportunity to Explain Just How It Happened That a Friendly Game Ended In a Row-- A Plain Drunk Given the Usual Dose.

The East End young men propose to put a Rugby football team in the field mext year, and every day or two in-, dalge in a practice game.

They have learned the essential features of the sport, but yesterday afternoon while having a practice game Harry Herbert and Daniel Stevens became angry, and as is usual in most Rugby football games they forgot that one of the points of the contest is to see how rough one can use his opponent and Mrs. Ogden Mills. without becoming angry. Therefore their part of the contest wound up in a rough and tumble fight in which Stevens came out second best with a badly bruised face.

Officer Terrence appeared on the scene and put an end to the fight. Stevens was taken to the home of a neighbor where his battered and braised face was washed, and he was made as comfortable as possible before taking his trolley ride with Officer Terrance to the office of Mayor Bough. He did not engoy the ride to any great extent, and when ushered before his honor told the pearance and charm men of prominence story of how the trouble occurred and filled him with tales of tackles, forward passes, end runs and line bucks. After hearing the story his honor released Stevens upon his own recognizance until he hears the other side of the story.

Mayor Bough had just one case to dispose of this morning and only a few moments were occupied. Last evening Alfred K. Adams got drunk, and during his rambles along Second street wandered into a hotel in that section of the city. He sat there a short time and then he began to see things which are not the best objects in the world to look apon by a man in his condition. Me went out in the street and wandered | were 1,000 seals in the herd, and the into Locust alley where he was caught | males were as big as heavy draft horses. in the police net by Officer McMillan. The patrol was called and he was soon in jail, although the police had to carry him for he was too drunk to walk. This morning he arranged to pay a fine craft, where the men stood, each with of $6.60 and went his way, promising an iron headed halibut club in one hand those in the mayor's office he would never be there again.

Charles Gallagher is still lingering as a guest of the city, he not having arranged to pay his fine of $54.60.

No one knows where Milborn is, and the charge of gambling which is against him is unsettled as yet.

On the River.

The continued warm weather has had the desired effect upon the river and at the present time there is no ice going down the Ohio. The river forecast, as the matter stands, is that it will rise slightly. Rivermen are predicting coal water again, and today in the pools the operators are getting ready in case the water arrives. The trouble is, there are not any too many boats and barges in to attack men on the sound. - Special port to handle the coal. It is estimated St. Louis Globe-Democrat. among coal operators that 2,000,000 bushels of coal could be gotten out on a rise if it comes within the next two or three days.

Tasted Lye.

Nellie, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bagley, of Thompson place, had her mouth badly burned yesterday by tasting lye which was in a cup at the home of her grandmother in Second street.

Two business men from Salem were in the city yesterday afternoon looking after a location for the purpose of opening a wall paper store. It is expected they will begin business within a few weeks.

Delayed the Train.

The train due in this city at 8:17 this morning did not arrive until 8:30 o'clock. When it left the station it was 25 minutes late, the delay being caused by loading the baggage of a theatrical company.

Granted a License.

Yesterday William M. Miller and Miss Janet M. Murphy, of Industry, were granted a marriage license in Pittsburg. The young couple are well known in this place.

Mrs. Henry T. Sloane Was a Belle of Brooklyn Heights Society.

Mrs. Henry T Sloane, whose separation from her husband is at present stirring the society of Manhattan, was formerly a Brooklyn girl and well known in the Heights society It is a generation since she lived in Brooklyn, and the fact of her having been a reigning belle on the Heights is not generally recalled today and will probably be in the line of news to the younger generation As Miss Jessie Robbins, early in the seventies, she was one of the most conspicuous figures, and the old Robbins mansion in Monroe place was a center of gayety

There are few more beautiful and distinguished looking women in the upper social life of Manhattan than Mrs. Sloane, and few who have risen to such importance. Not a Knickerbocker by birth any more than was her husband, by finesse and by judgment Mrs. Sloane has gradually come to be one of the leaders of the smart set, actually contesting within the past year or so social supremacy with Mrs. John Jacob Astor

It has even been rumored in the set that this season Mrs. Sloane intended to make her very beautiful house in East Seventy-second street the center of New York gayety, and that next year, with the entry of her daughter into society she would rule as Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish is starting out to do this winter. But the events of the past few days have changed the programme, and for a time at least Mrs. Sloane seems destined to ciety." go into at least temporary retirement. Her social campaign has attracted attention, and no wonder. Hardly less could have been expected of the former Miss Jessie Robbins, whose personal apand of the old Heights set, now between the ages of 40 and 50, well recall. -Brooklyn Eagle.

ATTACKED BY SEA LIONS.

Six Boatloads of Fishermen Rescued In the Nick of Time.

The steamer New England, which arrived at Seattle, Wash., recently from Queen Charlotte sound, brings word of a desperate encounter between sea lions and Boston fishermen. Six boatloads of men, when a mile from the steamer, found that they had allowed themselves to drift near a dozen rocky islands in the sound. Suddenly they were surrounded by a herd of walruses. There The men signaled to the steamer and turned to meet the terrible onslaught.

With a mighty roaring noise the sea lions approached the boat from all directions. A few feet from the frail and a revolver in the other, the animals hesitated. Then one monster male sprang at the foremost boat, crunching to matchwood an oar that was rammed down his open mouth as he advanced. This was followed by a blow on the head and a bullet through the eye, which momentarily discomfited the sea

This gave the men another respite, though the boats were fairly on the backs of the plunging monsters. The end of the fishermen would have soon come, had not the steamer in the nick of time rammed its way through the densely packed herd and lowered rope ladders to the men, by which every one of them escaped to the deck. Before the last man reached the steamer the boats had been smashed to driftwood. This is the first time sea lions have been known

SOCIETY RETIRED EARLY.

Philadelphia's First Experiment Under New Law Successful.

Society's early closing movement was showed a slight rise, and the marks tried for the first time in Philadelphia registered 7.8 feet. The Ben Hur got at a recent Monday evening dance. Threats of opposition by the younger element were not carried out, and the stamp of approval set at the dance is taken as establishing a society law

A society leader said to the New York World correspondent the other night:

"The crusade against late hours was made a necessity by the increasing demands on society Women were becoming physical wrecks before the season was over. We felt the need of sleep not only for ourselves, but for our children, and we deemed it incumbent to take vigorous steps toward accomplishing this end. "

Another Solomon.

Mayor Nichols of Wilkesbarre took a novel way of teaching scolding neighbors a lesson When they were brought before him, each side wanted to tell her story first, and raising both hands in an appeal for silence the mayor pulled out his watch and put on a dignified and mysterious air An oppressive silence followed in the mayor's court, and for several minutes the chief magistrate of the city sat holding his watch. Not a person stirred, nor was there a word spoken. Then he arose and quietly tiptoed out of the room. A sign to the chief of police, and he also went out, the other officers following. The two neighbors and their witnesses sat still for awhile, and then the mayor's lesson dawned upon them. His rebuke of silence should have a good effect.

DIVORCE.

Miss Josephine Marie Deals With the Ouestion In a Novel.

VIEWS OF A NEW YORK WOMAN.

Says the Nuptial Knot Is Tied For Life-"Let No Man Put Asunder" Tries to Show Christians Should Never Dissolve Marriage Ties-Some of the Passages Bearing on Divorce.

New York society women are publicly assuming a hostile attitude toward the practice of divorce. Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer recently published a list of persons of the first social prominence and excluded every name that had ever figured in a divorce case. Now appears a book written by one of the youngest women in society condemning divorce through the medium of fiction. Miss Josephine Marie, in a novel called "Let No Man Put Asunder," has expressed with great emphasis the Catholic point of view in regard to this social problem.

Miss Marie is the youngest daughter of the retired broker Joseph Marie of New York and the niece of Peter Marie, who has figured in New York society for many years. Miss Marie's social position is one that has enabled her to know the most prominent people and to observe all the inner workings of "so-

The young author cares more for the church, however, than she does for social gayeties. She was educated in the Convent of the Sacred Heart and now spends the greater part of her time in the charitable work connected with St. Francis Xavier's church. Personally Miss Josephine Marie is a charmingly spirituelle young woman, with a pale, delicate face and dark brown eyes and hair.

Miss Marie's book is not written for Catholics alone. It is for all readers who like a wholesome, thoughtfully written story. Miss Marie is very unwilling that the public should think of her as a Catholic woman expounding Catholic doctrines for Catholic readers. "Let No Man Put Asunder" will undoubtedly be one of the most widely read books of the season. It has been most attractively brought out by a New York firm of publishers.

The crisis of the book is a woman's temptation to desert her husband in order to marry his brother. Esperance le Clerque, orphan and Catholic, is loved by two brothers. The one whose love she returns is made through the other's treachery to seem unfaithful to her. When she has become the wife of the man who has deceived her, she discovers his deceit. She is urged to divorce herself. Catholic advice saves her. She sends away the man she loves and spends her life with her husband, who subsequently loses his sight in rescuing from fire the brother he has injured. The passages bearing on divorce are succinct and emphatic. "When the marriage has been valid," says the heroine at one point, "nothing can dissolve the tie." The man who has deceived her asks of Esperance, "Wha; would you do if you were to marry and then find it was for the worse?"

"Be faithful to my promises, of course, monsieur," was the prompt re-

"Divorce, desecrating home, inevitably lowers woman and deprives the offspring of at least one natural protect-

"It is difficult to see how any Christian could marry a divorced person without qualm of conscience. For a Catholic it would be an impossibility.'

"He is still your busband," says the priest when the broken hearted wife appeals to him, "and your duty, hard though it is, is clear. No assistance from the state is necessary; no physical. temporal harm can reach you, and, my daughter, no moral evil either."

The wife, accepting this advice, says to her husband:

"I am yours, Austin. Nothing in this life can sever us. Never shall I in thought, word or deed be disloyal to my vow. "-New York World.

A Hero For the Sake of Science.

Professor Grassi's discovery that the Roman malaria is spread by a particular species of gnats has been certified in a curious manner at the Santo Spirito hospital at Rome. All attempts to communicate the disease to animals had failed, when a patient in the hospital volunteered to have the experiment tried on himself. He was exposed to the gnats, developed the fever, his blood showing malaria bacilli, and was then treated with quinine. The doctors think that they are now in a way to discover a serum that will render people immune to the malaria. - Chicago Times-Herald.

Weeds.

Old Folger-I've got a letter from my son out west.

Golfin-So? What's Tom doing now? Old Folger-That's what I can't make out. He says he is engaged in the destruction of weeds. Now, that may mean he's smoking a good many cigars or that he is trying to induce some widow to make a second venture or it may simply mean that he is doing farm work .- Boston Transcript.

The Closure In the Ballroom.

[The most prominent matrons of Philadelphia have met in solemn conclave to reorganize Philadelphia society and the hours it should keep. They have already decided that half past 7 is late enough for dinner before a ball and that at their dances the lights shall be put out at 2 a. m.-London Daily Telegraph.]

Most excellent matrons, we hail you And wish you a well earned renown When success, as we hope, your endeavors

With ultimate triumph will crown! Tis a difficult task you're attempting. Your efforts may cost you most dear. In the name, though, of thousands of victims

We pray you to still persevere!

Rest not on your social crusading, Your zeal in no manner abate Till, having made dinner more early, Your dancing make not quite so late, And then, these intentions accomplished, To lassitude pray do not yield, Since still, for your praiseworthy efforts, There's such an unlimited field.

Abuses on all sides are waiting, Which surely you never will shirk. The "at home" in itself will afford you A chance for a full season's work, And when you have done it "at homers" Now blocked on inadequate stairs Or gasping for breath in hot corners Will mention you all in their prayers.

Assuredly, too, as reformers The chance you will eagerly seize To regulate somewhat the scandal That's rampant at "five o'clock teas." You will find in the "musical evening" A fortress you boldly should storm And unearth in the ethics of "calling" A score of odd things to reform.

Nor need you, your purpose effected, Alexanderlike, sit down and weep. There are tasks on this side the Atlantic Which you in employment will keep. Society here suffers sorely

From the ills that you meet to discuss. So when you've converted your neighbors Oh, please send a mission to us!

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympa. thizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others: And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others?

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent work. ing hours, and union labor employed

BEASON OF HAWKINS' REFUSAL

The Recklessness and Boldness of the Attempt Would Have Insured Its Success. Aguinaldo's Head Was Fearfully Swollen at the Time--Not Reduced Much as Yet.

These are pertinent questions at the present time, and are of decided interest to the friends and relatives of the boys who are now doing duty at Manila.

I well remember an incident which occurred shortly after we reached Manila, while we were yet on board the Zealandia, out in the waters of the bay. General Anderson was then in supreme command of the land forces, General Merritt not having arrived. All the Generals and Colonels had been ordered to assemble on board the China, the flagship, and the result was that it was determined to land and form encampments. General Anderson sent his aidde-camp to General Aguinaldo's home. about seven miles below Manila, asking for the loan of drays and water buffalo, for the purpose of hauling the heavy baggage to camp, after our landing on the beach. The aid-de-camp was met by Aguinaldo's aid-de-camp, the latter, a Massachusetts adventurer, making answer, in a supercilious and indifferent

"His Excellency is busy and cannot be disturbed."

No account was taken of the objections made to such treatment by the indignant American aid-de-camp, and the latter finally returned to the China and made report to General Anderson of his reception and refusal. Anderson and his staff were mad all the way through by this time and the aid-de-camp was given a typewritten message to Aguinaldo, with instructions to see that it was placed in the hands of the insurgent leader. Anderson's messenger was again met by the Massachusetts adventurer, and the fellow now made cool

"His Excellency is now sleeping and cannot be disturbed."

Only this and nothing more, and the aid-de-camp representing the United States was ignominiously turned down. Colonel A. L. Hawkins was mad, from center to circumference, as he related the incident after coming on board the Zealandia, and he said, in winding up the yarn, pointing to Aguinaldo's head-

"And there's the son-of-a-gun who needs to be killed. The fellow will yet lose his head."

The writer thought over the Colonel's remarks and finally went to the latter's stateroom and asked for a hearing, which was at once accorded, and the following proposition was made:

"Colonel, if you will let me pick 48 men from the rank and file of the regiment, accompanied by two sergeants, with myself in command, each man to be armed with rifle and revolver; and further have the Callaoa, with her rapid fire guns to back us up, and land my command from a launch on the beach one-half mile below Aguinaldo's residence, at a stated hour tonight, I'll agree to bring Aguinaldo and his aid-decamp on board the Zealandia, dead or

"But, sergeant. you have forgotten one very important feature. I would love to have the power to grant your request, and would dearly love to have a hand in reducing the swelling of Mr. Againaldo's cranium; but it can't be done at the present time as he is our ally and coworker, and supposed to be Working in harmony with Dewey and Merritt for the downfall and capture of the Spanish forces. Better luck in your next venture. Good night, sergeant." And thus did my hopes of glory and renown go glimmering for the nonce.

THE SASSAFRAS PLANT.

From It May Be Brewed a Pleasant Tea and a Good Mucilage.

A correspondent of the Charleston News and Courier says of the sassafras plant: "The whole plant is valuable for its medicinal properties. The root makes an excellent tea, spicy and fragrant, and has alterative virtues quite as good as the sarsaparilla. The stalks have an inner pith that, although tedious to extract much of it, when scraped out and put into cold water and agitated for a few moments with a spoon forms a most thick and tenacious mucilage, retaining a delicate flavor of the smell of the sassafras and is a bland and soothing drink in fevers, when the mouth is dry and great thirst exists. It is frequently retained gratefully when plain water is ejected.

It is astonishing how mucilaginous a small quantity of this pith makes a tumbler of water, which becomes thick, as gum arabic water. A mere teaspoonful of the pith taken out of the small green branches of the bush will make three or four tumblerfuls of thick mu-

For inflamed eyes this mucilaginous water is very soothing and curative and has long been used for all forms of inflammation of delicate tissues, but is so simple that it is ignored by the profession.

The oil of sassafras, which is made from the root as well as other parts of the plant, makes a splendid liniment for pains and aches in combination with turpentine in proportion of one-third of the former to two-thirds of the latter. Other stimulating tinctures, such as spirits of ammonia, are sometimes added, but the chief ingredient of the lightning liniments hawked about by itinerant quacks are composed principally of sassafras oil, which is really pungent and effective.

THE PRICE OF PEPPER.

It Helped to Change the History of the Old World.

In the sixteenth century all the pepper consumed in England was bought by the English merchants from the Dutch, who brought it from India. Owing to racial jealousy, the Dutch traders in 1599 raised the cost from 3 shillings to 6 shillings per pound. This petty display of ill feeling caused considerable annoyance to the English merchants and aroused in them that feeling of independence which has always been so characteristic of our race.

They determined to import their pepper direct from India in their own ships, and for this purpose formed a company, called the Governor and Company of Merchants of London Trading to the East Indies, and which in latter days became eventually known as the East India company.

Their first voyages embroiled them in almost innumerable quarrels with the Dutch and Portuguese, and for a time the venture proved a financial failure. It was not until 1615 that the company became successful and obtained lucrative treaties, owing to their decisively defeating the Portuguese.

From this time on their possessions gradually increased, slowly at first, and then very rapidly, until, by the wise and beneficial management of such men as Clive, Warren Hastings and Cornwallis, they exercised sovereignty over the greater portion of India.

In this manner it happened that an increase in the price of pepper momentously affected the history of mankind. -London Standard.

A Shining Mark.

A lady, grievously tormented with a corn on her toe, was advised by one of her friends to anoint it with phosphorus, which in a weak moment she did, but forgot to tell her husband before retiring at night. It had just turned 12 when the husband awoke, and was startled to see something sparkling at the foot of the bed.

He had never heard of a firefly in the locality, nor did be ever remember seeing such a terrible looking object as the toe presented. Reaching carefully out of bed till he found one of his slippers he raised it high in the air and brought it down with great force upon the mysterious light.

A shrick and an avalanche of bedclothes, and all was over. When at last he released himself from the bedclothes, he discovered his wife groaning in a corner of the bedroom, but she had not got that phosphorated corn.-London Answers.

Weather Forecasts.

The first attempt at scientific forecasting of the weather was the result of a storm which during the Crimean war, Nov. 14, 1854, almost destroyed the fleets of France and England. As a storm had raged several days earlier in France Vaillant, the French minister of war, directed that investigations be made to see if the two storms were the same and if the progress of the disturbances could have been foretold. It was demonstrated that the two were in reality one storm and that its path could have been ascertained and the fleet forewarned in ample time to reach safety.

BELMONT'S NEW PAPER

First Issue Attacks Vanderbilt and Other Rich Men.

IT ADVOCATES AN INCOME TAX

O. H. P. Belmont of the Banking Fire Is Its Founder-The New Publica tion Declares Its Opposition to Trusts and Corporations and It Policy on Democratic Politics.

Oliver H. P. Belmont has started a paper called The Verdict in New York the first number of which appeared or Dec. 19. It is a weekly illustrated sheet the illustrations consisting of colored cartoons after the style of Puck and Judge, and the paper resembles thos papers as to size. Judged by the first issue, The Verdict will not be a humor ous paper aside from the illustrations It aims to deal seriously with men and affairs. The men it deals with editori ally and pictorially in the first issue are handled without gloves. It is par ticularly severe on the Whitneys, the Vanderbilts, on J. Pierpont Morgan and Chauncey M. Depew. The principal cartoon represents Cornelius Vanderville grinding a street organ, with J. Pier pont Morgan standing beside the instru ment, a tambourine in one hand and the string attached to a monkey in the other. The monkey, with the face of Chauncey M. Depew, stands before a window in which is Thomas C. Platt, about to place a penny labeled "Sena-after Mr. Belmont's own suggestions. Mr. Belmont is a member of the banking firm of August Belmont & Co. In the salutatory of his new paper occurs the following declaration of its policy:

"In politics The Verdict will stand for the principles of Democracy as it understands them and for truth as the latter finds display. It will before an election care more for a man than a measure. It will read your list of candidates twice before it reads your platform once. The Verdict will be a Democrat. But no one need construe that to mean that it will support a bad man for place. Virtue and villainy have wide, impartial distribution. No party in its personnel has a monopoly of either. There are honest Republicans just as there are others who deserve the stocks. There are upright Democrats just as there are others who should be in jail. The Sing Sing sort of Democrat will not have The Verdict's countenance, though he be named by a dozen conventions and plant himself for a platform on the Ten Commandments. "This paper is against free silver 16 to 1-put a pin there-against free silver at any ratio. It is not for Bryan in 1900. It will do all that truth and honor may to prevent the selection of either the man or the issue in the next national convention. But there are worse things than free silver 16 to 1, and worse men than Bryan-who is himself worthy enough and comes only to be a tive if not exactly grammatical .menace as the exponent of free silverand The Verdict is free to say, as it stands on the threshold of an existence which shall at the worst be an honest one, that should Bryan and free silver again find Democratic adoption it will support them both.

an income tax comes from this pinchbeck class. "Those trade deadfalls and dellar traps, the trusts, The Verdict believes, should be smashed. They make the rich richer and the poor poorer. The locusts of Egypt were a mouthless brood to them. The Verdict is in earnest favor of catting the claws of corporations. It does not agree in abject public surrender to such outfits as, for example, the Metropolitan railroad, which recently, without leave obtained or license given, coolly made an endless pitfall of entire Broadway And while we are on the subject, let it be said that The Verdict is in favor of New York owning its own street franchises and does not indorse a surrender of its thoroughfares, rentless and priceless, to become mere hunting grounds of money for monopo-ty the citizen is no cetter than a toiated trespasser, while the telephone id telegraph and street railway commies are the true, real lords of the il. Such should have their claws cut, nd the manicuring should be short and arp and gone about at once."

With regard to Mr. Depew as a senaorial candidate, The Verdict refers to im as a tool of the Vanderbilts, and dds: "As becomes wealth that is wide wake and aware of itself, the Vanderiltian treasure enlisted an army of ootmen, butlers and valets. Among its ront rank door slammers was and is Depew.''-New York Sun.

Equal to Occasions.

Lord Whitworth, who held various posts of honor in English diplomatic ircles, was a kindly, gracious gentleman as well as a wit and a man of the world. He had indeed almost measured swords with Napoleon at the Tuileries when that despot railed at England for not having evacuated Egypt and Malta. accused her of having violated treaties and ended by flourishing a cane dangerously near the face of the English embassador.

Lord Whitworth put his hand on the hilt of his sword.

"What would you have done if the emperor had struck you?" he was afterward asked.

"I would have felled him to the ground," was the quiet answer. Perhaps the best story told of him is one showing how his quick wit disposed of a rival. When he was at the Russian court. Fox sent there as a sort of embassador of his own a man named Adair, the son of a surgeon.

One day the empress, speaking in French, said to Lord Whitworth:

"Is he a very important man, this M. Adair?"

"Not so very, madame," replied Lord Whitworth, "although his father was a grand saigneur," a remark which readers of French will recognize as a very good pun, for the word as used by Lord Whitworth means "blood letter," while by its sound it also meant a great lord. -Youth's Companion.

The Poetical Old Lady.

An old lady in a small country town has kept for the last 20 years and still keeps her accounts in doggerel verse. For example (and the specimens given are actual extracts from her books), if Mrs. Jones has half a pound of tea on "tick" it is entered thus:

> A pound of moist sugar And two of best rice. With four pounds of Dutch cheese. Which I hope will be nice-1s. 111/d.

And so on all through the book. In some cases the verses express doubt as to the customer's intention or ability to pay for the goods ordered. Thus:
